PLATT DENIES MAE WOOD WAS EVER HIS WIFE

Senator Totters to Witness Stand and Tells Story of Acquaintance.

ADMITS ENDEARMENTS,

He "Foolishly" Called Her Catty, Because She Was an "Agreeable Woman."

DIDN'T BUY LETTERS

Paid $1000 to Bring About Settlement Through Firm of Howe & Hummel.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Walking to his place with difficulty, United States Senator Thomas C. Platt today took the witness stand in his own behalf in the trial of the suit for divorce filed against him by Mae C. Wood, former Government employe and newspaper woman. Two attendants, who aided him in reaching the elevator and his seat in the courtroom, and his son, Frank H. Platt, and a stylishly gowned woman, accompanied the Senator.

The Senator admitted that he might have "foolishly" addressed Miss Wood in endearing terms, and said he liked her because she "was an agreeable woman," but he denied that he had married or ever promised to marry the plaintiff in the suit.

He testified that he paid $1000 to his son, Frank H. Platt, to bring about a settlement of a suit brought against him by Miss Mae C. Wood, through the law firm of Howe & Hummel.

Calls Wedding a Myth.

The alleged marriage in the Fifth Avenue Hotel, he declared, was a myth. When shown the so-called marriage certificate, he declared it was the first time he had seen it. He swore positively that he did not introduce two men to Miss Wood, and tell her one of them was a minister. One of them, she had testified, performed the ceremony of marriage.

He denied commissioning J. Martin Miller to get the letters he had written Miss Wood, or paying anyone any money for that specific purpose.

The letter bearing his signature setting forth an alleged acknowledgment of the marriage was simply a blank sheet of paper when he signed it, he swore. He said the paper was brought to him as a request for his autograph, which he granted.

There was a large crowd in attendance when it became known that the Senator probably would be in court to testify. This prospect developed during yesterday's sensational session of the hearing, when the Court denied the motion of the defense to dismiss the suit.

Conspiracy Is Alleged.

Following this decision Miss Wood continued her testimony, with the result that the statement alleged to have been signed by J. Martin Miller was put in evidence. This alleges that Secretary Loeb, Robert C. Wynne, former First Assistant Postmaster General, now Consul General at London, and Senator Platt, conspired to obtain from Miss Wood certain letters which, she said, were written to her by the Senator. Both Mr. Loeb and Mr. Wynne denied last night that they took part in any such action.

In opening his testimony the Senator said he was nearly 75 years old. His first wife died in 1901. He first met Miss Wood in 1901.

"Do you remember seeing her at the Oriental Hotel?" was asked.

"I never saw her at the Oriental Hotel in my life."

"Do you remember asking her in the month of August, 1901, at the Oriental Hotel, to become your wife?"

"I never asked her. It's false."

The Senator described his rooms at the Arlington Hotel, and said No. 158 was the parlor, and there were two bedrooms and a bath.

"Did you talk to the plaintiff in November, 1901, about marriage?"

"No."

"Did you on Thursday, Nov. 9, ask her to marry you, the ceremony to take place on Saturday, and say you yourself would make all arrangements?"

"I did not."

The Senator denied emphatically that he had given to Miss Wood a photograph of himself, on which he had written "To my dear wife." Miss Wood testified that she was sitting on Platt's knee while he wrote these words.

May Have Been "Foolish."

Mr. Lebarbier, Miss Wood's counsel, asked Platt if he ever addressed Miss Wood in endearing terms. Platt said:

"I may have foolishly done so sometimes."

Platt said he saw Miss Wood sometimes at his business office at 49 Broadway and that Miss Wood called with a Mrs. Canfield, who was a candidate for an appointment in the Philippines.

"How many times did you see her at the Fifth Avenue Hotel?" asked Mr. Lebarbier.

"I could not say. I saw her there a

BY JOVE, T. R. WILL BE GLAD TO KNOW MARS AND NEPTUNE ARE IN CABINET

Mercury and Ceres Also Represented, According to Taft's Playful Words.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Some of the President's advisers have been given new names. Secretary Taft started the re-christening as he stood on the steps of the White House office building just before the hour for the regular semi-weekly cabinet session. He had stopped to speak to one of his friends when Secretary Metcalf came up.

"How are you, Neptune? I hope you had a pleasant trip to the coast," exclaimed Secretary Taft.

"Thank you, Mars, I had a splendid time. The fleet is simply great," retorted the Secretary of the Navy.

"Here comes another of our brother gods, Mercury," continued Secretary Taft, as Postmaster General Meyer alighted from his carriage.

"And I suppose the one arriving now is Ceres," exclaimed a bystander, as Secretary Wilson of the Department of Agriculture swung into view.

Taft, Meyer and Metcalf all shouted with laughter. "Imagine Ceres in a plug hat and pants," cried Secretary Taft. Ceres, according to the mythology primers, was a lady.

FOLK MEN RULE IN CONVENTION; CAUCUS STORMY

Tenth District Democrats Elect Higgins and Hannauer Over Barret.

HUGH BRADY ATTACKED

Kinney, James J. Butler and John T. Soy Made Delegates to Denver.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 20.—The State Democratic Convention, to elect Missouri's delegates to the National Convention at Denver July 7, was called to order by Vice-Chairman Rubey of the State Committee at noon today.

John M. Atkinson of Ripley County, a pronounced Folk man, presided as temporary chairman.

In his address, Atkinson charged the Republican party with responsibility for the $61,500 shortage in the St. Louis Subtreasury. A bill to reimburse Subtreasurer Akins on account of that shortage has been fathered in Congress by Senator Stone.

Gov. Folk and Senator Stone will be chosen by acclamation as two of the four delegates-at-large. David R. Francis of St. Louis and former Mayor Reed of Kansas City will probably be the other members of the "Big Four," although the Folk leaders are concentrating their efforts on Congressman Champ Clark.

Wetmore Also Running.

The St. Louis delegation, 172 strong, is supporting former Gov. Lon V. Stephens in preference to Francis or Reed.

Col. Moses C. Wetmore is also running for delegate-at-large, but his candidacy appears to lack steam.

The Stone-Cook forces will try to accommodate Harry Hawes by bringing about the adoption of resolutions condemning the Miles-Kinney-Daley combination for taking what they term "snap judgment" on the St. Louis Democracy in the calling of mass conventions there Monday afternoon and night.

Such a resolution will fall unless the Stone men completely dominate the Resolutions Committee, which now seems unlikely.

Soy a Denver Delegate.

Delegates from the 16 Congressional Districts met this morning, and selected two delegates each to the Denver convention. Among the caucus selections is John T. Soy, partner in the saloon business of Ferd Warner, member of the House of Delegates, who was recently convicted of bribery. James H. Lee is the other delegate selected with Soy for the Eleventh District, which is in North and Northwest St. Louis.

The Twelfth District picked James J. Butler and Senator Tom Kinney.

The Twelfth District selected Frank Hussey as one of the alternate delegates, and his half-brother, Lawler Daley, for presidential elector.

$1000 Bill Man Honored.

In the Thirteenth Congressional District, Irwin L. Page of $1000-bill fame, was elected a delegate to Denver. When the Legislature investigated boodling four years ago Page refused to explain how he came into possession of a $1000 bill, on the ground that he might incriminate himself.

At the Tenth District caucus Charles Morrissey, clerk in the St. Louis election commissioner's office, almost precipitated a general fight by threatening to "lick" Joe Hannauer.

Subsequently he denounced the caucus chairman, Hugh Brady, declaring that Brady and Hannauer had packed the district convention in the interest of Harry Hawes and the breweries. Morrissey was backing J. V. S. Barret for election as one of the district delegates to the Denver convention. Barret was defeated, the majority vote being polled for Charles P. Higgins and Joe Hannauer.

Morrissey's charges and the counter accusations of the Hannauer forces, each accompanied by threats of personal violence, amused the country Democrats, who were attracted to the scene by a report that an old-fashioned Kilkenny fight had broken out in the St. Louis delegation.

Instructions for Bryan.

The entire delegation of 36 will be instructed to cast its vote for William J. Bryan, first, last and all the time.

Col. Moses C. Wetmore having withdrawn from the race, W. A. Rothwell of Moberly probably will be re-elected national committeeman without opposition.

State Insurance Superintendent W. A. Vandiver is showing more and more signs of wanting to be a delegate-at-large, and the chances are that he will be a candidate, and a dangerous one for the Stone-Wetmore clique to deal with.

Serious differences arose between the Folk and Stone men in the State Committee meeting last night, and no one can say with certainty whether they will culminate in an all-round row or a peaceful solution. Today it caused much bitter discussion among the delegates.

Judge W. N. Evans of Howell County is chairman of the State Committee and also a candidate for the nomination for Governor. Two years ago Harry L. Rubey, the banker of Macon County, to

BEAUTY AND THE BEAST IN A MELODRAMA

Horse Is Made the Basis for This East St. Louis Thriller.

"CHEE—ILD" IS MISSING

But Leading Woman, Heavy Man and Town Co. Are All There.

The stage setting, the dramatis personae, all except the 'chee-ild,'' and the incidents surrounding the purloining of a horse and buggy, the rescue of a fair lady, the pursuit by the irate husband, the escape and the subsequent suit in a justice court in East St. Louis, has all the flavor of a corking good melodrama.

Cast of Characters.

"Kid" Becker, "King of the Sports."

Mrs. Louise Becker, the persecuted wife.

Frank C. Smith, the wily lawyer.

Constable Tom Peet, always ready to succor a lady in distress.

Judge Driscoll, who hands out writs of replevin.

Benner & Brichler, who run a livery stable.

Stable boys, hostlers, bridge tenders, policemen and villagers.

Scene East St. Louis and St. Louis. Time, present.

That much to start the reader on the true flavor of the story, the third act of which will not be acted until next Saturday in Justice Driscoll's Court in East St. Louis.

"Kid" Becker, who lives in the Royal Hotel in East St. Louis, and his wife, Mrs. Louisa Becker, of 3421 Lawton avenue, St. Louis, have been separated about a year.

About a month ago the real action of the piece began when someone took Mrs. Becker's horse and runabout from the stable of her home.

Wife on the Trail.

Mrs. Becker did not report her loss to the police. She started out to find it herself, with a head full of strategy and an acumen born of experience. Step by step, she trailed the horse and buggy to East St. Louis, where she had a "strong hunch" she would find it, anyway.

As she was going along Main street she saw a sign which said: "Frank C. Smith, lawyer." The very thing. A melodrama would not go with the gallery without a lawyer.

While Mrs. Becker, who is an exceedingly handsome woman, a prize winner in the Post-Dispatch beauty contest, and who wore on this occasion about $4000 worth of diamonds, was telling the lawyer that she suspected that her husband had taken her horse, she happened to look out the window.

"As I live and breathe,' she exclaimed, leaping to her feet. "There goes my horse and buggy now."

"Follow it while I get out a writ of replevin," shouted the lawyer, jamming his hat on his head and leaping down the stairs.

Mrs. Becker followed the horse and buggy by devious ways until she saw it enter the livery stable of Benner and Brichler.

Obtained Replevin Writ.

Hastening back to the lawyer's office, she was met by Smith armed with a replevin writ and a stout and husky constable known to fame as Tom Peet.

"We will get the steed, or by my collar button, I'll swim in gore," spoke Tom Peet.

At the livery stable, Tom Peet was spurned, but Mrs. Becker walked down the stable until she came to her horse, which recognized her with a plaintive whinney and rubbed its velvet nose against her shoulder.

In a trice, whatever that is, Tom Peet had the horse hitched to the runabout, and Mrs. Becker sprang to the seat and seized the lines.

At that moment a noise like a man who was mad as a hornet was heard at the livery stable door, and "Kid" Becker broke through the crowd and grabbed the reins.

"Unhand me, villain!" whinneyed the horse.

"Yes, take your hands off," said Tom Peet. But before "Kid" Becker could perform this singular anatomical feat upon himself, Tom Peet, the gentle constable knocked him down, and Mrs. Becker drove triumphantly away.

"Hitch up the fastest horse you have," shouted the irate Becker. "I will follow her to St. Louis. Tell them to swing the bridge so she can't get across. I will beat her to Missouri yet." But he didn't.

That night while the horse and buggy were standing in front of Mrs. Becker's house, Becker rode past in an automobile. He turned and came back and attempted to take the horse a second time, but was prevented by a friend of Mrs. Becker. A free for all fight took place and Becker was driven off.

Justice Driscoll of East St. Louis, will determine next Saturday to whom the rig belongs.

WIDOW WAITS FOR CORONER AND WATCHES BODY

Man Who Killed Himself Remains All Night in Death Chair.

His widow being afraid to have it moved before the arrival of the Coroner, the body of Fred Clager of 6802 Smiley avenue, who killed himself Tuesday evening with carbolic acid, was left sitting all Tuesday night and Wednesday morning in the chair in which he had killed himself.

Mrs. Clager, not knowing that by informing the police the body would be removed, telephoned the Coroner Wednesday morning.

Coroner's Promise to Send Out.

The Coroner said he would send out one of his assistants. When a Post-Dispatch reporter reached the house at noon no one had arrived.

Persons living in the neighborhood say that Clager had been drinking heavily lately and that his wife had threatened to leave him. She went to a friend's house Tuesday afternoon and when she returned, about 7 o'clock, she found her husband apparently asleep in a chair by the open kitchen window.

Watches Body All Night.

She leaned over to rouse him and discovered that he was dead. Rushing frantically out into the street she alarmed the neighborhood. Dr. H. L. Field of 6823 Scanlan avenue was called who said carbolic acid poisoning. The physician then and he pronounced the man dead of carbolic acid poisoning. The physician then left.

Mrs. Clager had heard that a body should not be touched until the Coroner arrived. So all night she watched the body, and in the morning telephoned for the Coroner.

Flora Douglas Drains Bottle of Poison at Party After Quarrel With Official.

PITTSBURG, Pa., May 20.—Despondent after a quarrel with a friend, said to be a Pennsylvania State official, Flora Douglas, a Cleveland actress, gathered a party of friends at her apartments here, drained a bottle of carbolic acid in their presence, fell writhing at their feet and died in a few moments.

The actress had been the life of the merry party and when, early today, she exclaimed, "Well, here goes," and lifted the bottle to her lips, no one even suspected that she was not the happiest of the group.

An attempt to knock the bottle from her hand failed.

8-Year-Old Murders Sister.

BRIDGEPORT, O., May 20.—Eddie Pfifer, 8 years old, told his sister, Minnie, aged 4, that he was going to kill her this morning. He got his father's gun and placed it across a chair and blew the child's brains out.

WADDEL CASTS ASIDE UNIFORM; QUITS BROWNS

Rube Complains That Money Matters Are Not Satisfactory.

Dispatches received by the Post-Dispatch Wednesday afternoon from Philadelphia, where the St. Louis Browns are playing, state that "Rube" Waddell, in a fit of anger, threw aside his uniform and quit the St. Louis team Wednesday morning.

Whether his action was regarded by Manager McAleer as final was not stated in the dispatches.

Waddell's sensational pitching against the Philadelphia Athletics, his old teammates, won Tuesday's game for the Browns.

Waddell was obtained from Philadelphia at the outset of the season. A large price, never authentically made public, was paid for him by Manager McAleer of the Browns.

At the office of R. L. Hedges, president of the Browns, it was stated that nothing had been heard of Waddell's action.

BATTLESHIPS FIGHT THEIR WAY THROUGH SEVERE STORM

Wireless Message From Flagship Indicates Weather Is Worst Encountered During Voyage.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 20.—That the Atlantic fleet is encountering off the coast of Oregon the heaviest seas since it left Hampton Roads, is the news the United Wireless Telegraph office in this city received last night from the flagship. The ships are struggling against a stormy headwind and making slow progress.

Wireless communication last night was difficult. The wireless station at Cable Bluff, Ore., reported at night that a heavy sea had been running high all day and that the indications were that there was a big storm at sea. The hydrographic bureau on the Farollone Islands sent out wireless warnings to all vessels of an expected heavy blow from the northwest.

TELEGRAPHERS TO COME HERE

St. Louis Chosen as Place for 1909 National Convention.

The National delegate convention of telegraphers, train dispatchers, agents and signal men, who were originally associated with the Order of Railway Telegraphers, in session at Pittsburg, has adopted an amendment to the by-laws, to make a strike possible only when there is a four-fifths vote for it.

The organization selected St. Louis as its next place of meeting, according to press dispatches Wednesday.

The following officers were elected: J. D. S. Baird of Philadelphia, president; J. R. T. Austin of Philadelphia, secretary; J. O. Eppenheimer of Frankfort, Pa., first vice-president.

SEVEN IN PICNIC PARTY DROWN WHEN LAUNCH BLOWS UP

FISHERMAN SEES FIRE, RESCUES 7 FROM DEATH

Glare in Sky Is Signal of Disaster—Schools Close and Lodge Men Join In the Work of Dragging River for Bodies—Woman Swims From Peril.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CLARENDON, Ark., May 20.—When the gasoline launch "Columbia" exploded in midstream on White River, one and one-half miles below here, last night, a merry society excursion was turned into a tragedy and seven persons, all prominent, and five of them young women, were drowned.

There were 13 in the party, E. A. Saifer, the fourteenth, being the owner of the boat.

The saved:
Mrs. George R. Read, Clarendon.
Miss Irma Waddell, Memphis.
Miss Mary Cavett, Clarendon.
Joseph Youngblood.
Guy Hudgins.
E. A. Saifer.
W. F. Vaughan.

Of the entire party only Miss Waddell and Messrs. McManus and Saifer knew how to swim.

Dr. Houston and Miss Berton were engaged, the wedding to take place in June.

The accident occurred at a point in White River known as "Dead Man's Point," a famous but fatal old swimming hole.

Schools Are Dismissed.

Today all schools were dismissed, every business house was closed and all available men are at the scene assisting in the search for the bodies. While the river is 50 feet deep where the explosion occurred, pearl fishermen are at work with nets, dragging it.

The work is difficult on account of the depth and the swift current. Unless some results are obtained in a few hours a diver will be secured.

The explosion was caused by the gasoline catching fire. None of the survivors gives a clear account of it. Some say there were two slight explosions which threw burning gasoline over the floor of the launch. Others say the gasoline caught fire and spread over one side of the boat.

Anxious to escape the flames, all rushed to the other side. The weight proved too much for the craft and it capsized.

Some were under the boat and, not knowing how to swim, had no chance to fight for life.

Others came up clear of the Columbia, only to go down again.

Three others caught a life-preserver and battled through the blazing stream until picked up. When the launch capsized the party was in midstream, 75 yards from either shore.

Mrs. Reed organized the party to entertain her guests, Misses Waddell, Peete, Palmer and Burton.

Picnic on High Bluff.

The start from Clarendon was made at 5 o'clock. The run down the river was made in an hour and the party enjoyed a picnic supper on the high bluff at Aberdeen.

Darkness came and the return trip was started.

It was 8:30 p. m. when the gasoline caught fire. Saifer, who was steering, turned the prow of the boat toward the bank, but the flames spread rapidly and all made a rush for a place of safety on the other side. In a swinkling the Columbia had capsized and the fourteen men and women were struggling in the water. To the survivors all the rest is hazy.

Woman Swims From Peril.

Miss Waddell came up under the burning boat. An experienced swimmer, she soon got out of this dangerous position. The glare of blazing timbers and the gasoline afire on the water showed her a piece of driftwood and she swam to it, holding to this she finally was picked up by J. J. Hamilton, a fisherman, who was attracted to the scene by the flames.

The water was 50 feet deep where the boat capsized and those who sank once are not believed to have come to the surface.

Mr. McManus, one of those drowned, was an experienced swimmer. There are various stories as to how he came to lose his life. One is that McManus was swimming toward shore, when one of the women struggling in the water cried out: "You are not going to let me drown, are you?"

To this he replied: "I'll do the best I can for you."

She grasped him about the neck, locking his arms, both going to the bottom.

The Columbia was equipped with life preservers, but the capsizing was so sudden that none were prepared, to make use of them. One was seen floating on the water and Mrs. Read and Mr. Youngblood grabbed it. At least one more could have been saved by this life preserver, but the attention of none of those struggling in the water could be attracted to it, and all were so far away that before Mrs. Read and Mr. Youngblood could go to them they sank.

Mr. Saifer saved Miss Cavett by swimming with her to a piece of driftwood. He then saved Mr. Hudgins in the same way.

Hamilton, the fisherman, rowed up the stream and picked up Miss Waddell, Miss Cavett, Mrs. Read, Mr. Youngblood, Mr. Hudgins, Mr. Vaughan and Mr. Saifer and took them to a fishing camp, where they prepared to spend the night.

Husband Becomes Alarmed.

Mr. Reed became alarmed when no word was received from the picnickers at 9 o'clock, and when 10 o'clock came, with still no news, he became frantic with anxiety.

A glare was noticed in the sky, but no thought of this having anything to do with the launch was given by relatives and friends in Clarendon.

Unable to stand the suspense longer, Mr. Reed organized a searching party. When the searchers saw the Columbia lying on one side and still burning, the truth was suspected for the first time. The searching launch was run close to shore and turned back up stream.

The boat was heard by the survivors and soon Mr. Reed was clasped in his wife's arms, while she sobbed out the story of the terrible end of what had been a happy outing. The survivors boarded Mr. Reed's launch and were taken back to Clarendon, arriving here just at midnight.

Hundreds of citizens met the launch at the wharf, and the news of the deaths and escapes spread rapidly.

With the break of day in the sky today kindly-hearted men began to prepare to search for the bodies.

Steamboat Carries Searchers.

The steamer Alda, owned by the Galloway Plow Beam Co., was procured and nearly every available man boarded it and went to the scene of the tragedy to help in the work.

Mr. McManus and Dr. Houston were Masons and several of the young women drowned were daughters of Masons, and that organization took a leading part in the work.

Arriving at the charred wreckage, all that was left to tell the tale of last night's tragedy, runners were sent up and down the banks to get the pearl fishermen to bring their nets to drag for the bodies.

The work now is actively underway, but has met with no success. Some have suggested using a cannon, fired under water, to bring the bodies to the surface, but nothing trangible has come of this.

Should the bodies not be found within the next few hours it has been decided to send for a diver.

All Prominent in Society.

All in the party were prominent socially. Miss Winfield was the daughter

ROOSEVELT DEAL WITH CARNEGIE TRUST CHARGED

Check for $250,000 Price of Hepburn Bill Support, League Declares.

WILL GO TO CHICAGO

Leading Republican Will Warn Delegates Against Ratifying Alleged Agreement.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—Through its secretary, H. B. Martin, the American Anti-Trust League has proposed to the Judiciary Committee of the Senate to prove that, for sufficient funds to secure the presidential nomination for Secretary Taft, President Roosevelt and his administration have bargained with the United States Steel Corporation to sell out the Sherman anti-trust law.

The league proposes to put Andrew Carnegie, E. H. Gray, chairman of the Executive Committee, and a number of the directors on the stand, and show that Mr. Carnegie has given his personal check for $250,000 to the manager of the Taft campaign, and that he and his company have agreed to give a great deal more if the Hepburn law is passed at this session.

The Anti-Trust League proposes to prove further that Mr. Carnegie is in the habit of making contributions to senatorial campaign funds, giving all the way from $10,000 to $50,000 in each State where any friend of the Steel Trust is in danger of being defeated, or where there is a chance to defeat for re-election a man who has been unfriendly to the great corporation.

Depew Asks Proof.

When Secretary Martin told the committee last Saturday that the Hepburn bill had been drawn by Francis Lynde Stetson, chief counsel of the United States Steel Corporation, and Victor Morowitz, chief counsel of the Santa Fe Railroad, and that Seth Low, president of the National Civic Federation, had only played the part of a messenger boy in submitting it to the House Judiciary chairman, Senator Depew said that the anti-trust secretary should be made to prove his charges. Mr. Martin replied at the time that Mr. Low had admitted on the stand that the lawyers had drawn the bill.

The Hepburn bill defines what is a good and what is a bad trust, and how each shall be treated. If a combination of capital is benovelent, according to the opinion of the inspector or supervisor of trusts appointed by the President, it is to be branded "Fair," and if no charges are preferred against it within a year after being so designated, it is to be exempt from prosecution for all past sins. There is no doubt in the minds of the heads of the anti-trust league that if the Hepburn bill should be enacted into law, both the Steel Trust and the Santa Fee will become "fair" just as quickly as a year can elapse.

Offers Evidence.

The charge that the administration and the trusts had made a deal was first published exclusively in the New York World and Post-Dispatch April 25.

"This effort to trade a law for money and political support is without a precedent in our history," said Mr. Martin today. "The President and his henchmen became panic stricken, and determined to do everything possible to nominate Taft.

"All we ask is that the Senate Judiciary Committee disregard political consequences and allow us to produce the proof. The charge that Carnegie has contributed $250,000 to Taft's campaign fund will be threshed out on the floor of the convention at Chicago. One of the leading Republicans of the country will be furnished with the proof, and he will give the delegates fair warning."

INQUIRY INTO DEATH AT COURTHOUSE IS RESUMED

Widow, in Chicago, Believes Albert Schuster Was Killed for His Money.

Policemen have resumed the investigation into the death of Albert Schuster, former night engineer at the Court House, whos dead body was found at the bottom of a flight of stairs leading to the basement of the building on the morning of March 5. The Coroner's verdict pronounced the death an accident.

Schuster had a wife in Chicago. He was believed here to be a bachelor. It was testified at the inquest that Schuster boarded at 2101 Utah street, and was unmarried.

Mrs. Schuster read an account of her husband's death, and wrote to the police that her husband usually carried a large sum of money. William Winzer, chief engineer at the Court House, said Schuster had $20 the night before his death.

Special Officers Kennedy and Archey, after several days' inquiry, reported that Schuster had no money in his possession the night before his death. Schuster had only one arm, and it was thought he lost his balance while descending the stairs.

Shaw's Garden Suit Being Considered.

The suit of the trustees of Shaw's Garden against the commissioners of Tower Grove Park, to obtain authority to sell the 200-foot strips of ground bordering the park on the north and south, is still undecided. Judge Reynolds took the case under advisement, after hearing testimony Tuesday.

Miss Waddell is the daughter of St. John Waddell of Memphis.

Messrs. Hutchins and Youngblood are teachers in the Clarendon schools.

Miss Peete, formerly of Covington, Tenn., has been living in Joplin, Mo., with her brother, Barrett Peete, and in Carthage, Mo., with William Peete, another brother. She came here from St. Louis, where she had been on a visit.

W. J. Peete, of 4755 Washington boulevard, brother of Miss Alma Peete, the drowned girl, says she had lived intermittently in St. Louis during the past eight years, dividing her time between this city, Covington, Tenn., the family home, and Clarendon, Ark., the home of a cousin, A. L. Smith. She presumably was on a trip to his home at the time of the accident, Mr. Peete says.

She was in St. Louis several months ago, he says, but he was not aware of her movements since. She has a brother, R. C. Peete, who travels for a speedometer company. He is in St. Joseph today.

Kansas City Girl on Annual Visit.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 20.—Miss Bessie Palmer, who was drowned near Clarendon, Ark., last night, was a daughter of Alonzo T. Palmer, 3110 Harrison street, a traveling salesman for the Iowa Glove Co. of Iowa City, Ia. Miss Palmer was 26 years old.

She was born in Malta Bend, Mo., where her father was president of the Malta Bend Bank. Her early education was given her in Malta Bend. From there she attended Carter College, at Nevada, Mo.

In 1899 the family moved to Kansas City. Miss Palmer was graduated from Central High School a year later.

Every year Miss Palmer and her mother went to Clarendon to visit her sister, the wife of Dr. N. E. Murphy of that city, and her brother, Earl M. Palmer, a druggist. They left for their annual visit three weeks ago.

Miss Palmer is survived by her father, mother, brothers and three sisters.

Mr. Palmer is out of the city and the family so far has been unable to reach him with news of his daughter's death.

Dr. A. L. Houston, who also was drowned, was a nephew of Dr. Murphy of Clarendon.

CITIZENS RAISE MONEY FOR WIDOW OF JEFFRIES' VICTIM

Pleas for Clemency in Case of Slayer Are Opposed by Residents.

Citizens of New Melle, St. Charles County, have raised $47.50 by subscription for the support of Mrs. William Wussler, whose husband was shot and killed March 5, 1905, by William Jeffries, sentenced to be hanged in St. Charles June 4.

Mrs. Wussler and her four small children are said to be practically destitute. The New Melle citizens sent a check to Sheriff Hines with instructions to turn the money over to Mrs. Wussler.

Citizens of St. Charles are opposed to any executive clemency being shown Jeffries. A petition signed by more than three hundred persons has been forwarded to Gov. Folk protesting against any commutation of Jeffries' sentence.

NEW EVIDENCE FOUND AGAINST RAY LAMPHERE

Prosecution Traces His Movements After Firing Gunness Home.

LAPORTE, Ind., May 20.—That Ray Lamphere, held on suspicion of having caused the death of Mrs. Belle Gunness and others at the Gunness farm, may have returned to the home of Elizabeth Smith, after setting fire to the Gunness house and then made a second start for the Wheatbrook farm, where he was employed, is a new theory advanced by the State, which is supported by strong evidence, the prosecution says.

Mrs. H. Whitzer of Toledo arrived today to investigate whether her daughter, who in 1902 attended the University of Valparaiso, nine miles west of Laporte, was among Mrs. Gunnass' victims. The girl disappeared from school after writing her mother that she was going on a visit.

The finding in the ruins of the Gunness home yesterday of the upper and lower bridges containing the false teeth of Mrs. Gunness shows that she perished in the flames which destroyed her home April 28. Dr. I. P. Norton, who built the bridge, identified the teeth as those of Mrs. Gunness.

FORMER ILLINOIS BANKER KILLS HIMSELF IN HOTEL

Lost $50,000 Speculating and His Life Was Insured for $20,000.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 20.—Jud B. Vance of Des Moines, Io., aged 45 years, shot and killed himself in his room in the Savoy Hotel last night. His body was found lying across the bed, a bullet hole behind the right ear and a revolver near his right hand.

In the room a note was found asking the proprietor of the hotel to notify Vance's wife at Des Moines, and to send her all of his personal effects.

"I am awfully sorry to do this, but think it is the best thing for my family,' the note said.

Vance left a widow and three sons in Des Moines. He came to this city three weeks ago and had been drinking lately, according to the Coroner. Vance at one time was a banker at Danvers, Ill., and withdrew with $50,000 in cash which he lost in speculation. He carried $20,000 life insurance.

QUARREL OVER WOMAN LEADS TO FATAL OZARK SHOOTING

Youthful Farmers in Taney County, Both Married, Fall Out Over Neighbor Girl.

McVey, after the killing, drove to Forsythe and surrendered to the authorities. The killing was the result of a quarrel, during which Coy is alleged to have accused McVey of intimacy with a young woman in the neighborhood.

McVey asked Coy to retract his statement. Coy refused and McVey shot Coy in the left breast. McVey is in jail charged with first degree murder. Both men were married.

EVIDENCE OF CONSPIRACY TO GET PLATT LOVE LETTERS

I WAS asked by high Government officials at Washington and New York to get possession of Senator Platt's love letters to Mae C. Wood. In order to do this I had to pretend I would get out a book, for which she gave me the manuscript on Oct. 8, 1893. It was agreed by all parties interested that I was to get her to New York and get the papers out of her rooms.

Mr. Loeb called up Platt in New York and told him Miss Wood was going to sue him for breach of promise. Then Platt said he would be a party to the scheme. I failed to get possession of any original letters or documents. We then began the scandal in the newspapers to force her to come to terms. Wynne, First Assistant Postmaster-General, started the ball rolling by getting the New York World to print the article as it first appeared. I established my headquarters in the Tribune Buildings and disseminated such information as I could get from the office of the First Assistant Postmaster-General. Senator T. C. Platt was fully informed of all matters by me, as I was instructed to co-operate with him, but the original papers were not to be given to Platt, but to Mr. Loeb in Washington.

I was got into the conspiracy by powerful officers whom I would not dare to displease from a newspaper or political standpoint. I consulted Mr. Howe, Platt's secretary, frequently and acted at all times under the direction of Loeb and Platt.

ty, ran him a close race for election as chairman.

Why Evans Changed Mind.

When Evans became a candidate he asked Mr. Rubey, who is a member of the committee from the First Congressional District, to serve as acting chairman. It was understood that Evans was to resign some time before the primary election in August and let Rubey be elected to succeed him.

Judge Evans came here yesterday without having placed his resignation in the hands of the secretary, but expecting to retire. He found some of the adherents of Senator Stone had boasted that they would "kick the old stiff off the committee."

There is enough Celtic blood in Evans to accept any suggestion of warfare, and when told of the opposition's threat he declared promptly he wouldn't resign under fire.

For that reason he attended the committee meeting without offering his resignation.

Conran's Move Fails.

While the committee was selecting the temporary officers and before it had finished that order of business Isaac Conran, who sat in committee on a proxy, said:

"A vacancy exists in the office of chairman of the State Committee. I move that the committee now proceed to fill the vacancy by electing a new chairman."

Rubey was in the chair. Judge Evans was leaning on a bed post in a corner of the room.

"The motion is out of order," said Rubey, "for the reason that no vacancy exists at this time." Then he ordered the committee to proceed with its regular business. When the routine work had been finished, Conran again raised the chairmanship question by calling on Rubey to explain his position.

Rubey Himself May Quit.

"I have nothing to say at this time," said Rubey, "but I will call a meeting of the committee as soon as the convention has adjourned tomorrow and then make a full statement."

A motion to adjourn the committee until this afternoon carried promptly. It is understood that if Evans does not resign Rubey will, and there will be some fireworks in connection. Evans says he will "see how they behave today and act accordingly." Meanwhile "the old gang" is demanding that he resign.

"Tell them to go to Hades," is Leader Shannon's advice to Evans. "You were elected by the convention and the committee has not authority to remove you, or make you resign."

There is considerable feeling on both sides, but so long as his enemies say they are going to throw him out, Evans has no idea of quitting without giving them a chance to try.

Excessive Drinking

Excessive or continued use of alcoholic beverages always results in a diseased condition of the nervous system.

The drinking man is often heard to say, "I can stop of my own free will and when I wish," but the poor fellow is now devoid of the power to act at the proper time and in the right way. It's too late—the craving has secured a firm hold—and because of the diseased nervous system he has not the ability for sustained effort. The result we all know.

Drunkenness is no longer considered a crime; eminent scientists and physicians have agreed that it is a disease and must be treated as such.

The home treatment that has been used for a number of years, and is highly successful, is Orrine. It is sold under a positive guarantee that if it does not effect a cure your money will be refunded.

Orrine is in two forms. When desiring to give secretly, purchase Orrine No. 1, and if the patient will voluntarily take the treatment, Orrine No. 2 should be given. The guarantee is the same in either case. Orrine costs but $1.00 per box. Mailed in plain sealed wrapper on receipt of price. Write for free treatise on "Drunkenness," mailed in sealed envelope by The Orrine Co., Washington, D. C. Sold by leading druggists everywhere, and in this city by Wolff-Wilsh Drug Co.

Two Attendants Support Aged Senator to Place in Court-room.

good many times."

"Did you call her Katy?"

"I called her Catty in my letters. I was very much pleased with her and liked her very much."

"Did she call you by any pet name?"

"Never in my life."

"Why did you like her?"

"Because she was an agreeable woman."

"Did you ever at any time or place marry the plaintiff in this suit?" asked Mr. Stanchfield, counsel for the Senator.

"I did not."

"Did you ever promise to marry the plaintiff?"

"I did not."

"Did she ever promise to marry you?"

"Not that I know of."

The Senator said that he first learned that Miss Wood claimed to be his wife from a Chicago newspaper, he thought in 1903; he could not remember the year.

"Did you ever give the plaintiff a wedding ring?"

"I never gave the plaintiff a wedding ring in my life."

"Did you ever have a wedding ring inscribed for her?"

Never Saw Certificate.

The lawyer handed the Senator the alleged marriage certificate, and the Senator declared that he never saw the paper before in his life, although he had seen a photograph of it.

"Did you, on the night of Nov. 4 1901, hand that paper to the plaintiff?"

"I never did."

"Do you know where that exhibit was procured, or who procured it?"

"I do not."

"Is there any handwriting of yours on that paper?"

The Senator looked the paper over, back and front, and then said:

"There is not."

All of the letters alleged to have been written by the Senator to Miss Wood were read and he denied that he had written any of them.

"Why did you send Miss Wood word to occupy a certain room in the Fifth Avenue Hotel?"

"I don't understand why I did it. I told her to await my signal, because I was going to take dinner with her."

The letter reading: "Your letter is so bright, it almost reconciles me to Odell's election," was dated 1901, and Mr. Stanchfield asked:

"Odell was elected way back in 1900, was he not?"

"He was."

"Yes, that was the year he beat me, and I thought I could not be mistaken," said Mr. Stanchfield, which raised a laugh in the courtroom, in which the Senator joined.

Platt said: "I don't think it is a genuine letter. I would not write a letter in such a tone to her now or at any time."

Platt was shown the letter and he said it was in his handwriting.

"Why did you address her so?" questioned Mr. Lebarbier.

"Because I liked to correspond with her."

"The only one?"

"She was one."

Attorney Stanchfield, on redirect examination, asked him regarding the payment of $10,000 to Howe & Hummell, which has been testified to.

"The law firm of O'Brien, Boardman, Platt & Littleton, of which my son is a member, received a communication from Howe & Hummel that Miss Wood had a claim against me. They proposed a settlement, and I turned over to the firm $10,000 and left the disposal of it with them."

Platt was then excused, and tottered out of the courtroom.

A number of depositions, the chief of which, signed by a Miss Dunning, averred that she accompanied Miss Wood to Platt's apartments in Washington, and that he signed the declaration acknowledging Miss Wood as his wife, were then read. Recess was then taken.

"That is absolutely false," he replied. "The Senator said he had met J. Martin Miller frequently, but he denied any knowledge of the plan for obtaining his letters to Miss Wood. This was told of in the statement, purporting to be signed by Miller, which was introduced in the case yesterday.

"Did you obtain letters written by yourself to Miss Wood in 1903?"

"I did not."

Denies Miller Charge.

"When did the letters come to your attention?"

"I don't recollect that I ever had the letters."

"What part did J. Martin Miller have in securing the return of those letters?"

"I don't recall that he had anything to do with it," the Senator answered. He denied also that Miller ever demanded money from his son Frank for similar purpose. He did, however, indorse a $1000 note for Miller, he said, and now has been almost entirely paid.

The Senator said he married Mrs. William Janeway in October, 1903. He was not permitted to answer when asked if there had been a previous secret marriage.

Clergyman His Secretary.

The Senator said he could not remember whether he kept the engagement. He said he was not in the habit of inviting women to the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

He could not remember whether his secretary, Mr. Howe, was at the hotel on the night of Nov. 9, 1901, nor could he say whether Mr. Howe, who had been a clergyman remained a licensed minister while in his employ. He was sure he had never heard of Mr. Howe performing a marriage ceremony during that period. Asked if Mr. Howe signed his letters in a fac simile of the Senator's writing, the witness said he had never seen such signature.

The Senator did not recall how many times he met Miss Wood in 1902, or how many letters he wrote to her in 1903. He went to the house of Mrs. Lamont in West Thirty-eighth street at times, he said, but never sent for Miss Wood to meet him there. He was not permitted to answer the question whether he used an assumed name when visiting at the Lamont place.

Denies Secret Arrangement.

"Was there a secret arrangement between you and Miss Wood as to marriage?" he was asked.

The Senator declared positively that he had never maintained improper relations with the plaintiff.

"Did you ever call her by a more endearing name than Catty? Call her dearest?" asked Mr. Lebarbier.

"I don't believe I ever did."

"Ever tell her you were miserable?"

"I don't remember."

Mr. Lebarbier read a letter alleged to have been written by Platt to Mae Wood in 1902 calling her "dearest Mae," saying she must not expect much from him, as his time was occupied and "life is hardly worth living." After the convention he hoped to meet her. It ended "peace and plenty be with you."

For two hours they stood in the street in scanty apparel and watched the fire. When it was extinguished they returned to their rooms.

The blaze, which was discovered by Patrolman Moore shortly after midnight, was caused by crossed electric wires, and resulted in $10,000 damage. WOMAN'S JAW BROKEN BY BLOW FROM HER HUSBAND'S FIST

Mrs. Fitzgerald Makes Discovery After Cause of Trouble Is Sent to Workhouse.

Mrs. Letitia Fitzgerald discovered at the City Hospital Wednesday that her jaw was broken where her husband had hit her with his fist.

When she went to the hospital she did not know what caused her jaw to ache as it did. She supposed the blow had loosened some of her teeth. At the hospital a doctor said:

"Why, woman, your jaw is broken. What did it?"

"My husband hit me there," she answered.

"You ought to have him arrested."

"I have already attended to that. Judge Tracy sent him to the Workhouse yesterday," she said, and it was true. Dr. Henry Fitzgerald was fined $50 in the Police Court Tuesday for striking his wife, and as he could not pay, he was sent to the Workhouse.

Dr. Fitzgerald was rich when he was married, but, his wife alleges, he lost his fortune. Lately they have been living at 3105 Laclede avenue.

Monday night, while her husband was away, Mrs. Fitzgerald and her baby were put out because the rent was unpaid. She sat on the doorstep with her baby in her arms until her husband came home, at 2 o'clock. Then he struck her twice in the face, she told Judge Tracy.

CITY LIGHTING PLANT FAVORED ON SOUTH SIDE

Broadway Merchants Advocate Municipal Competition With Union Electric Company.

St. Louis Can Make and Sell Electricity at Very Low Rate.

Impetus to the movement for a municipal lighting plant was given by the South Broadway Merchants' Association Tuesday night, when its delegate to the Affiliated Business Men's Association was instructed to take up the question with that organization.

The South Broadway Merchants' Association is strongly in favor of a municipal lighting plant to enter active competition with the Union Electric Light and Power Co. by selling electricity to all consumers.

The Tenth Ward Improvement Association, at its meeting Sunday, passed a resolution favoring the municipal lighting plant. The association estimated that a municipal plant could be erected for $3,000,000.

The North St. Louis Business Men's Association started the movement for the municipal plant last week. The North St. Louis Citizens' Association likely will take up the question at its June meeting.

Saving for Consumers.

Representatives of the business men's organizations say that a municipal lighting plant will result in enormous savings to consumers.

It is pointed out that the Union Electric Light and Power Co., with its outstanding stock and bonded indebtedness, approximating $33,500,000, must earn about $2,500,000 annually to pay its interest, dividends and sinking funds.

The fixed charges of the Union Electric on its abnormal capitalization and bonded indebtedness, the business men say, are enough in one year to start a municipal lighting plant that can supply electricity to a large portion of the consumers in St. Louis.

Plan of the Campaign.

The excessive charges of the Union Electric Light and Power Co. for service, since it has wiped competition out of the local fields, is one of the principal reasons why the sentiment in favor of a municipal plant is developing so rapidly.

The plan upon which the campaign for the municipal plant is being waged is for the district, ward and civic organizations first to indorse the plan. Then a central organization, similar to the United Free Bridge Committee, will be formed, to carry it to a successful conclusion.

Coins in Little Izzy's Hand Puzzle X-Ray Men

He Slips Money Under Bandage, and It Comes Out Like Bullet in Picture.

NEW YORK, May 20.

AN X-ray photograph was taken yesterday of the temporarily bandaged broken hand of a 9-year-old boy named Isidor Brein, in the King's County Hospital. The surgeons and electrician, Harry H. Shrope, were present. The picture showed four round, black spots clustered in the palm.

"What can they be?" asked one of the puzzled surgeons.

"Look like mushroomed bullets," said another. "Were you snot, Izzy?"

"Naw," answered the boy. "I was fell on by a board."

"Remove the bandages," ordered the senior surgeon, adjusting his glasses preparatory to a close inspection of the "spotted hand."

Carefully the gauze was unwound, and out tumbled a quarter and three nickels. As salve for his hurt, the coins had been given Isidor by sympathetic friends before he left Brownsville for the hospital.

"Gee! Never mind de mitt, look out for dat quarter," cried Isidor as the coin rolled toward a corner of the operating room. "I forgit all about dey was in dere."

Isidor had slipped the coins inside the bandages for safe keeping. While the broken bones were being set, Isidor, who never winced, clutched in his free hand the four coins he had brought to the hospital, as well as some others that were added as a reward for his pluck.

LIGHT TRUST IS OFFERED $100 TO "SHOW" NETTLE

Merchant Willing to Pay for Proof That Electricity Rates Have Decreased.

HAS NOT FOUND IT SO

Bills Increased From $10 and $15 to $35 and $69.

Nathan Nettle, a merchant, of 1867 South Twelfth street publicly offers a reward of $100 to the Union Electric Light & Power Co. to prove to him that its rates under the November schedule are cheaper than the rates in effect before competition was driven from the field.

Mr. Nettle also offers to contribute $100 to Attorney General Hadley and Circuit Attorney Sager to aid them in their ouster suit against the light trust.

Mr. Nettle, under a contract made in 1906, paid five cents a kilowatt hour.

Increase From $10 to $69.

He signed a new contract, May 1 1907, at 10 cents a kilowatt hour.

Under that contract his bills increased from $10 and $15 a month to $35 and $69 a month.

The Union Electric Light & Power Co. canceled his contract at the expiration of the first period of one year and offered him a new contract at 12 cents a kilowatt hour.

Mr. Nettle refused to sign the contract. He ordered the Union Electric to discontinue its service.

Subsequently the company tried to get him to renew his contract.

"I offered to pay the company a flat rate of $400," said Mr. Nettle to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "It would not take it.

Willing to Pay for Proof.

"Union Electric is claiming that its new rates are a benefit to the small consumer. I will pay $100 for proof that the new rates are cheaper than the old rates."

Under the old schedules of Union Electric the small consumer could get off with a minimum guarantee of $1 a month.

Under the November schedule, which the Union Electric Light and Power Co., there is no minimum guarantee of less than $2 a month.

Printed conspicuously under the rate schedule is the following:

"No minimum guarantee less than Two Dollars per month."

The Union Electric Light and Power Co. also has greatly increased the minimum guarantees of all consumers under its new contracts.

No Hard Times Here.

It has protected itself against "hard times," just as it said it was going to in its pamphlet on "Equitable Rate-Making."

Here is what the company says in this pamphlet:

"If hard times should come on and everybody suddenly should cease using lights and motors, there would be no electricity registered on the consumers' meters, and if customers paid merely according to the number of kilowatt hours registered on their meters, they would, in that event, cease paying anything and the revenue of the electric company would cease entirely."

"Hard times" did come on just about the time this new rate schedule went into effect.

Consumers of electricity had no means of protecting themselves against hard times.

They couldn't say to their customers, "You've got to pay for shoes, or hats, or clothes, whether you buy them or not."

Hundreds of little motors stopped consuming electricity.

Hundreds of little merchants tried to cut down their light bills.

But the consumers with the silent motor in his shop, or the merchant with his disconnected lamps, was forced to pay the electric light company whether they used electricity or not.

The light trust had protected itself against hard times at the expense of the consumers, who were having the hardest kind of a struggle to keep the Sheriff away from the door.

HIGH SCHOOL BOY WHOSE CLOTHES SHOCKED TUTOR

CHARLES KRAUSNICK.

ALL OSTEOPATHS MUST HAVE DIPLOMAS, HADLEY DECIDES

Certificate From School Is Required in Addition to Examination by State.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 20.—The Attorney-General's office today delivered an opinion that will affect all the osteopath physicians who have taken the examination from the State Board of Osteopathy within the last two years.

The opinion is to the effect that all osteopath doctors who are practicing without a diploma from some regular school of osteopathy are doing so illegally; that the law not only requires the examination before the State Board, but the diploma also. Heretofore it has been customary for the State Board to grant licenses to those who successfully passed an examination whether they had a diploma from a school or not.

RUSE IS SEEN IN O'REILLY INQUIRY

South Side Business Men Suspect Mayor of Overt Move.

Members of the South Broadway Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, at a meeting at Loebig's Hall, Broadway and Geyer avenue, expressed the opinion that the investigation ordered by Mayor Wells of the conduct of the office of Andrew J. O'Reilly, president of the Board of Public Improvements, was a political ruse to delay the progress of the free bridge.

Ben Westhus, president of the association; Attorney Sheridan Webster and J. C. Anderson declared emphatically the investigation was a veiled attack on the bridge.

FANCY "PANTS" SHOCK PRINCIPAL OF HIGH SCHOOL

Student Sent Home Because His Raiment Was Deemed Too Gorgeous.

REVOLT IS EXPECTED

All McKinley Boys to Wear Cream Trousers With Blue "Cuffs."

Charles Krausnick of 4117 Magnolia avenue, a member of the senior class at McKinley High School, was sent home by Principal Gilbert B. Morrison Tuesday because he attempted to set a new "college" fashion by wearing cream-colored trousers with a dark blue "cuff."

Krausnick is a member of the school's track team which won a decisive victory over Central High last Saturday and he is popular with his fellow students.

Members of his class are up in arms because of the action of Principal Morrison. They say that he has no right to dictate what sort of clothes a pupil shall wear, especially when the sartorial effort is a "scream" which threatens to back the Harvard hump off the map.

Will Defy Principal.

There are 20 young men in the class. They had all planned to wear trousers like Krausnick's on the last day of school, June 12, but now that their chosen arbiter of fashion has been humiliated they have decided to go to school wearing the cream colored trousers with blue "cuffs" next Friday and defy the principal to do his worst.

When Krausnick approached the school at Jefferson and Russell avenues his fellow students sighted him from afar. With those trousers he could have been seen through the wrong end of a telecope.

They were of the daintiest and softest flannel with small blue stripes an inch apart. The dark blue "cuffs" in striking contrast to the upper works of the garment; were nearly three inches wide.

They were not what the small boy would call "long pants," as the bottom of the startling "cuffs" were a good five inches above the shoe tops.

Pupils Salute Trousers.

Between the trousers and the shoes was a more or less symmetrical expanse of open-work white hose.

The shoes were black low-quarters, fastened with a big silver buckle.

In addition to these articles of nether apparel Krausnick wore a blue serge coat, fastened at the bottom button, a bright blue shirt, a light green tie, a collar fastened with safety pins and the "dinkiest" of narrow-brimmed straw hats.

As the Beau Brummel of McKinley High approached the entrance to the school the other students, both boys and girls lined up on either side of the steps, stood at attention and saluted the trousers.

Some of them shouted their approval and this attracted the attention of the principal.

"Go Change Your Clothes."

Prof. Morrison, whom the boys call "Doc" Morrison, ran downstairs from his office. Krausnick was returning from the locker room in the basement where he had left his hat preparatory to going to his classroom.

Principal Morrison caught him by the shoulders and swung him around.

"Go right back and get your hat," he said. "You can't stay here with those—those—things."

He held to Krausnick's arm and marched him to the basement. When they returned the students were lined up in the main corridor, leaving a space just wide enough for the principal and the daring creator of styles to pass.

Solemnly Prof. Morrison led Krausnick to the door. "Go home and change your clothes" was his parting admonition.

"I have no inclination to dictate what sort of clothes the students shall wear," said Prof. Morrison to the class after he had sent Krausnick home, but I have the right to forbid anything which will distract the minds of the students and prevent them from giving undivided attention to their studies."

"Doc" Morrison Is Criticised.

An hour later Krausnick returned, wearing a somber brown suit and slipped into his classroom.

When school was dismissed the members of the class got their heads together and voted to appear Friday in the newest thing in "the college clothes line"—the Krausnick trousers.

Krausnick is 18 years old and is the son of Walter Krausnick, secretary of the Missouri Feather Manufacturing Co.

LITTLE BOYS SHOW NERVE UNDER KNIFE

Facing Loss of Feet, One Thinks Only of His Mother.

ANOTHER LOSES ARM

Refuse Anesthetics and Watch Hospital Surgeons at Work.

Arthur Stephens and Roy White, little lads at the City Hospital, are going to get well if unusual care from doctors and nurses counts for anything, because the doctors and nurses admire their splendid qualities.

Arthur is only 13 years old, but when his crushed arm was amputated he refused to take an anesthetic and watched the surgeons at their work. Roy's only thought, when the surgeons prepared to cut off both of his feet, was for his mother.

Arthur is a son of Mrs. Mary Stephens, a widow, who lives at 8401 Reilly avenue. He was standing at the Davis street crossing of the Iron Mountain tracks Tuesday night watching a freight train go by. A negro boy on a flat car snatched his cap. Arthur tried to board the car to get it back. He lost his footing and fell under the wheels which passed over his left arm.

No Use to Cry.

"It's hard luck to lose an arm, but it might have been worse; I might have had my head cut off," said the boy to the surgeons as they worked on his crushed arm. It's not use crying over spilt milk."

When the surgeons laid Roy upon the operating table, he whimpered in a pitiful way. The surgeons tried to cheer him.

"You mustn't cry. It will be over in a minute and you won't feel it," they told him.

Sorry for His Mother.

"Aw, gwan; it's not that I'm thinking of, it's me mudder. What'll she do now? I can't sell papers without any feet," he cried.

His mother, Mrs. Ella White, is a widow. She lives at 4051A Shenandoah avenue. Roy was her principal support. He sold papers at Union Station and was known to everyone there as an industrious boy.

Tuesday night, after his day's work was done, he boarded a Compton avenue car and started for home. He was riding on the front platform. At Thurman and Shenandoah avenues the track is rough and the car bounced so that he lost his balance and fell off. Both feet were crushed beneath the wheels and his right leg above the knee was cut to the bone. He will recover.

MANILA HERO SHOOTS WIFE AND KILLS SELF

Becomes Desperate When He Fails to Win Back Estranged Wife.

SPRIGFIELD, Mo., May 20.—After vainly trying to effect a reconciliation with his wife, from whom he had been separated a few days, Robert E. Garnett, 30 years old, of Kansas City, an employe of the Emery-Bird-Thayer Dry Goods Co., shot and fatally wounded his wife at the home of her father here last night, and then blew out his own brains.

Garnett and his wife quarreled and she returned to the home of her father, Benjamin J. Martin, a wealthy overalls manufacturer here. Garnell followed her and yesterday made a number of ineffectual attempts to persuade his wife to return to him.

She refused, and, in desperation, he shot her. Thinking he had killed her, Garnett ran to the home of his mother and fired a bullet into his brain. He died instantly. Mrs. Garnett may recover.

They were married four years ago after an elopement. The Garnett family moved to Springfield from St. Louis when Robert Garnett was 5 years old. His father, now dead, was a traveling salesman.

During the Spanish-American War Garnett was a soldier in the Philippines. He led a notable charge, naked, on a fort at Manila. He stripped off his clothing in his desire to keep to the front, and waded through water neck deep. He was given a medal for this.

LILLEY ACTED IN BAD FAITH, HOUSE IS TOLD

Select Committee in Submarine Investigation Exonerates Everybody.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The select House Committee appointed to investigate the charges made by Representative George L. Lilley of Connecticut of corrupt practices on the part of the Electric Boat Co. and members of Congress with respect to submarine legislation, made its report today.

Instead of finding the Electric Boat Co. guilty of wrongdoing, the committee arraigned Lilley, charging that he acted as the "instrument of the Lake Torpedo Boat Co.," a rival of the Electric.

It is charged in the report that, concealing from the select committee the real parties in interest behind the investigation which furnished him with information and evidence—the Lake Torpedo Boat Co.—Lilley violated his obligation by formulating and urging before the committee groundless charges against Representative Loud, in regard to the Electric company, and in permitting his clerk to send out letters in his (Lilley's) name reflecting on the honor and integrity of members of the House; that he acted in contempt of the House in not disavowing openly a letter published over his signature.

In speaking of Lilley's motive in introducing his resolution, the report says "evidence has demonstrated that the avowed motive was neither well grounded nor sincere, and that certain secondary and ulterior purposes instigated and encouraged the introduction."

Although Lilley asserted during the hearings that he did not know Neff of the Lake company, it was subsequently proven that they were very intimate.

AN AGED PHYSICIAN

After Years of Experience Gives the Following Advice.

"If you have anything to do with medicines at all be pretty sure you know what you are taking."

This is a strong point in favor of the valuable cod liver preparation, Vinol. Everything it contains is plainly printed on the label, therefore it is not a patent medicine.

Vinol contains in a highly concentrated form all of the medicinal, body building elements of cod liver oil, actually taken from the fresh cods' livers, but with the useless, nauseating oil eliminated and tonic iron, which is a needful constituent for the blood added.

This is the reason that Vinol accomplishes such wonderful results in curing chronic coughs, colds, bronchial and lung troubles, and there is nothing known to medicine that will so quickly build up the run down, overworked, tired and debilitated, or give strength and renewed vitality to the aged, as Vinol.

We can only ask every person in St. Louis who needs such a medicine to try Vinol on our offer to return their money if it fails. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Sixth and Washington Av.

The Perfect Woman Is Not a Fat One.

Artists say the ideal proportion of weight in a woman is 26 pounds for every foot of her height. This would make a woman of 5 feet 4 inches weigh 136 pounds 8 ounces.

If you weigh more than this in proportion you are on the danger line and are likely to get too fat in a few years. Check it by taking a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime of this recipe: ½ ounce Marmola, ½ ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 3½ ounces Syrup Simplex. Get the Marmola sealed and mix it with the other ingredients at home. This mixture is harmless, will not cause wrinkles, and has been known to take off seven pounds of fat a week without any help from exercise or dieting. It is inexpensive—Adv.

JAPANESE VESSEL DETAINED IN A CALIFORNIA HARBOR

Immigration Inspectors Will Search It, Suspecting Attempt to Smuggle Chinese.

LOS ANGELES, May 20.—Immigration officials were notified late last night of the arrival of a mysterious Japanese steamer at Gaviota, in Santa Barbara County. The vessel carries a large crew.

When the captain attempted to land his men the authorities at the small port prevented it. Immigration officials at this point telegraphed the officials at Gaviota to detain the vessel until an investigation can be made.

An immigration officer will go to Gaviota to question the ship's officers and inspect the ship's papers. It is thought the vessel may contain Chinese who are trying to land in violation of the immigration laws.

The captain said he came in for food and water. He said he carried a cargo of oil.

Help the Bowels Gently—Do as Nature Does

When pain follows physic you are doing the bowels an injury. You are wrecking the stomach, too.

You are causing the bowel lining to harden, just as the skin gets callous under irritation.

Then the bowels cease to supply their own laxative, and you have constipation.

Harsh physic also inflames the stomach, and the result is dyspepsia.

Constipation and dyspepsia are generally due to salts, castor oil or cathartics.

You can get the same help without the slightest danger of injury.

Cascarets are just as effective Yet they are gentle, acting in Nature's way.

No pain, no griping, no irritation. Take one daytime or night-time—whenever you need it. Correct the trouble at the start.

You won't need them long.

For Cascarets are curative. Their action is to set the bowels right.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The box is marked like this:

CITY LIGHTING PLANT FAVORED ON SOUTH SIDE

St. Louis Can Make and Sell Electricity at Very Low Rate.

Impetus to the movement for a municipal lighting plant was given by the South Broadway Merchants' Association Tuesday night, when its delegate to the Affiliated Business Men's Association was instructed to take up the question with that organization.

The South Broadway Merchants' Association is strongly in favor of a municipal lighting plant to enter active competition with the Union Electric Light and Power Co. by selling electricity to all consumers.

The Tenth Ward Improvement Association, at its meeting Sunday, passed a resolution favoring the municipal lighting plant. The association estimated that a municipal plant could be erected for $3,000,000.

The North St. Louis Business Men's Association started the movement for the municipal plant last week. The North St. Louis Citizens' Association likely will take up the question at its June meeting.

Saving for Consumers.

Representatives of the business men's organizations say that a municipal lighting plant will result in enormous savings to consumers.

It is pointed out that the Union Electric Light and Power Co., with its outstanding stock and bonded indebtedness, approximating $33,500,000, must earn about $2,500,000 annually to pay its interest, dividends and sinking funds.

The fixed charges of the Union Electric on its abnormal capitalization and bonded indebtedness, the business men say, are enough in one year to start a municipal lighting plant that can supply electricity to a large portion of the consumers in St. Louis.

Plan of the Campaign.

The excessive charges of the Union Electric Light and Power Co. for service, since it has wiped competition out of the local fields, is one of the principal reasons why the sentiment in favor of a municipal plant is developing so rapidly.

The plan upon which the campaign for the municipal plant is being waged is for the district, ward and civic organizations first to indorse the plan. Then a central organization, similar to the United Free Bridge Committee, will be formed, to carry it to a successful conclusion.

Coins in Little Izzy's Hand Puzzle X-Ray Men

He Slips Money Under Bandage, and It Comes Out Like Bullet in Picture.

NEW YORK, May 20.

AN X-ray photograph was taken yesterday of the temporarily bandaged broken hand of a 9-year-old boy named Isidor Brein, in the King's County Hospital. The surgeons and electrician, Harry H. Shrope, were present. The picture showed four round, black spots clustered in the palm.

"What can they be?" asked one of the puzzled surgeons.

"Look like mushroomed bullets," said another. "Were you shot, Izzy?"

"Naw," answered the boy. "I was fell on by a board."

"Remove the bandages," ordered the senior surgeon, adjusting his glasses preparatory to a close inspection of the "spotted hand."

Carefully the gauze was unwound, and out tumbled a quarter and three nickels. As salve for his hurt, the coins had been given Isidor by sympathetic friends before he left Brownsville for the hospital.

"Gee! Never mind de mitt, look out for dat quarter," cried Isidor as the coin rolled toward a corner of the operating room. "I forgit all about dey was in dere."

Isidor had slipped the coins inside the bandages for safe keeping. While the broken bones were being set, Isidor, who never winced, clutched in his free hand the four coins he had brought to the hospital, as well as some others that were added as a reward for his pluck.

LIGHT TRUST IS OFFERED $100 TO "SHOW" NETTLE

HAS NOT FOUND IT SO

Bills Increased From $10 and $15 to $35 and $69.

Nathan Nettle, a merchant, of 1867 South Twelfth street publicly offers a reward of $100 to the Union Electric Light & Power Co. to prove to him that its rates under the November schedule are cheaper than the rates in effect before competition was driven from the field.

Mr. Nettle also offers to contribute $100 to Attorney General Hadley and Circuit Attorney Sager to aid them in their ouster suit against the light trust.

Mr. Nettle, under a contract made in 1906, paid five cents a kilowatt hour.

He signed a new contract, May 1, 1907, at 10 cents a kilowatt hour.

Under that contract his bills increased from $10 and $15 a month to $35 and $... a month.

The Union Electric Light & Power Co. canceled his contract at the expiration of the first period of one year and offered him a new contract at 12 cents a kilowatt hour.

Mr. Nettle refused to sign the contract. He ordered the Union Electric to discontinue its service.

Subsequently the company tried to get him to renew his contract.

"I offered to pay the company a flat rate of $400," said Mr. Nettle to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "It would not take it.

Willing to Pay for Proof.

"Union Electric is claiming that its new rates are a benefit to the small consumer. I will pay $100 for proof that the new rates are cheaper than the old rates."

Under the old schedules of Union Electric the small consumer could get off with a minimum guarantee of $1 a month.

Under the November schedule, which the Union Electric Light and Power Co., there is no minimum guarantee of less than $2 a month.

Printed conspicuously under the rate schedule is the following:

"No minimum guarantee less than Two Dollars per month."

The Union Electric Light and Power Co. also has greatly increased the minimum guarantees of all consumers under its new contracts.

No Hard Times Here.

It has protected itself against "hard times," just as it said it was going to in its pamphlet on "Equitable Rate-Making."

Here is what the company says in this pamphlet:

"If hard times should come on and everybody suddenly should cease using lights and motors, there would be no electricity registered on the consumers' meters, and if customers paid merely according to the number of kilowatt hours registered on their meters, they would, in that event, cease paying anything and the revenue of the electric company would cease entirely."

"Hard times" did come on just about the time this new rate schedule went into effect.

Consumers of electricity had no means of protecting themselves against hard times.

They couldn't say to their customers, "You've got to pay for shoes, or hats, or clothes, whether you buy them or not."

Hundreds of little motors stopped consuming electricity.

Hundreds of little merchants tried to cut down their light bills.

But the consumers with the silent motor in his shop, or the merchant with his disconnected lamps, was forced to pay the electric light company whether they used electricity or not.

The light trust had protected itself against hard times at the expense of the consumers, who were having the hardest kind of a struggle to keep the Sheriff away from the door.

The Perfect Woman Is Not a Fat One.

Artists say the ideal proportion of weight in a woman is 26 pounds for every foot of her height. This would make a woman of 5 feet 4 inches weigh 136 pounds 8 ounces.

If you weigh more than this in proportion you are on the danger line and are likely to get too fat in a few years. Check it by taking a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime of this recipe: ½ ounce Marmola, ½ ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 3½ ounces Syrup Simplex. Get the Marmola sealed and mix it with the other ingredients at home. This mixture is harmless, will not cause wrinkles, and has been known to take off seven pounds of fat a week without any help from exercise or dieting. It is inexpensive.—Adv.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 20.—The Attorney-General's office today delivered an opinion that will affect all the osteopath physicians who have taken the examination from the State Board of Osteopathy within the last two years.

The opinion is to the effect that all osteopath doctors who are practicing without a diploma from some regular school of osteopathy are doing so illegally; that the law not only requires the examination before the State Board, but the diploma also. Heretofore it has been customary for the State Board to grant licenses to those who successfully passed an examination whether they had a diploma from a school or not.

South Side Business Men Suspect Mayor of Overt Move.

Members of the South Broadway Merchants and Manufacturers' Association, at a meeting at Loebig's Hall, Broadway and Geyer avenue, expressed the opinion that the investigation ordered by Mayor Wells of the conduct of the office of Andrew J. Ben Westhus, president of the association; Attorney Sheridan Webster and J. C. Anderson declared emphatically the investigation was a veiled attack on the bridge.

FANCY "PANTS" SHOCK PRINCIPAL OF HIGH SCHOOL

Student Sent Home Because His Raiment Was Deemed Too Gorgeous.

All McKinley Boys to Wear Cream Trousers With Blue "Cuffs."

Charles Krausnick of 4117 Magnolia avenue, a member of the senior class at McKinley High School, was sent home by Principal Gilbert B. Morrison Tuesday because he attempted to set a new "college" fashion by wearing cream-colored trousers with a dark blue "cuff."

Krausnick is a member of the school's track team which won a decisive victory over Central High last Saturday and he is popular with his fellow students.

Members of his class are up in arms because of the action of Principal Morrison. They say that he has no right to dictate what sort of clothes a pupil shall wear, especially when the sartorial effort is a "scream" which threatens to back the Harvard hump off the map.

Will Defy Principal.

There are 30 young men in the class. They had all planned to wear trousers like Krausnick's on the last day of school, June 12, but now that their chosen arbiter of fashion has been humiliated they have decided to go to school wearing the cream colored trousers with blue "cuffs" next Friday and defy the principal to do his worst.

When Krausnick approached the school at Jefferson and Russell avenues his fellow students sighted him from afar. With those trousers he could have been seen through the wrong end of a telescope.

They were of the daintiest and softest flannel with small blue stripes an inch apart. The dark blue "cuffs" in striking contrast to the upper works of the garment, were nearly three inches wide.

They were not what the small boy would call "long pants," as the bottom of the startling "cuffs" were a good five inches above the shoe tops.

Pupils Salute Trousers.

Between the trousers and the shoes was a more or less symmetrical expanse of open-work white hose.

The shoes were black low-quarters, fastened with a big silver buckle.

In addition to these articles of nether apparel Krausnick wore a blue serge coat, fastened at the bottom button, a bright blue shirt, a light green tie, a collar fastened with safety pins and the "dinkiest" of narrow-brimmed straw hats.

As the Beau Brummel of McKinley High approached the entrance to the school the other students, both boys and girls lined up on either side of the steps, stood at attention and saluted the trousers.

Some of them shouted their approval and this attracted the attention of the principal.

"Go Change Your Clothes."

Prof. Morrison, whom the boys call "Doc" Morrison, ran downstairs from his office. Krausnick was returning from the locker room in the basement where he had left his hat preparatory to going to his classroom.

Principal Morrison caught him by the shoulders and swung him around.

"Go right back and get your hat," he said. "You can't stay here with those—those—things."

He held to Krausnick's arm and marched him to the basement. When they returned the students were lined up in the main corridor, leaving a space just wide enough for the principal and the daring creator of styles to pass.

Solemnly Prof. Morrison led Krausnick to the door. "Go home and change your clothes" was his parting admonition.

"I have no inclination to dictate what sort of clothes the students shall wear," said Prof. Morrison to the class after he had sent Krausnick home, but I have the right to forbid anything which will distract the minds of the students and prevent them from giving undivided attention to their studies."

"Doc" Morrison Is Criticised.

An hour later Krausnick returned, wearing a somber brown suit and slipped into his classroom.

When school was dismissed the members of the class got their heads together and voted to appear Friday in the newest thing in "the college clothes line"—the Krausnick trousers.

Krausnick is 18 years old and is the son of Walter Krausnick, secretary of the Missouri Feather Manufacturing Co.

JAPANESE VESSEL DETAINED IN A CALIFORNIA HARBOR

Immigration Inspectors Will Search It, Suspecting Attempt to Smuggle Chinese.

LOS ANGELES, May 20.—Immigration officials were notified late last night of the arrival of a mysterious Japanese steamer at Gaviota, in Santa Barbara County. The vessel carries a large crew.

When the captain attempted to land his men the authorities at the small port prevented it. Immigration officials at this point telegraphed the officials at Gaviota to detain the vessel until an investigation can be made.

An immigration officer will go to Gaviota to question the ship's officers and inspect the ship's papers. It is thought the vessel may contain Chinese who are trying to land in violation of the immigration laws.

The captain said he came in for food and water. He said he carried a cargo of oil.

LITTLE BOYS SHOW NERVE UNDER KNIFE

Facing Loss of Feet, One Thinks Only of His Mother.

Refuse Anesthetics and Watch Hospital Surgeons at Work.

Arthur Stephens and Roy White, little lads at the City Hospital, are going to get well if unusual care from doctors and nurses counts for anything, because the doctors and nurses admire their splendid qualities.

Arthur is only 13 years old, but when his crushed arm was amputated he refused to take an anesthetic and watched the surgeons at their work. Roy's only thought, when the surgeons prepared to cut off both of his feet, was for his mother.

Arthur is a son of Mrs. Mary Stephens, a widow, who lives at 8401 Reilly avenue. He was standing at the Davis street crossing of the Iron Mountain tracks Tuesday night watching a freight train go by. A negro boy on a flat car snatched his cap. Arthur tried to board the car to get it back. He lost his footing and fell under the wheels which passed over his left arm.

No Use to Cry.

"It's hard luck to lose an arm, but it might have been worse. I might have had my head cut off," said the boy to the surgeons as they worked on his crushed arm. It's not use crying over spilt milk."

When the surgeons laid Roy upon the operating table, he whimpered in a pitiful way. The surgeons tried to cheer him.

"You mustn't cry. It will be over in a minute and you won't feel it," they told him.

Sorry for His Mother.

"Aw, gwan; it's not that I'm thinking of, it's me mudder. What'll she do now? I can't sell papers without any feet," he cried.

His mother, Mrs. Ella White, is a widow. She lives at 4051A Shenandoah avenue. Roy was her principal support. He sold papers at Union Station and was known to everyone there as an industrious boy.

Tuesday night, after his day's work was done, he boarded a Compton avenue car and started for home. He was riding on the front platform. At Thurman and Shenandoah avenues the track is rough and the car bounced so that he lost his balance and fell off. Both feet were crushed beneath the wheels and his right leg above the knee was cut to the bone. He will recover.

When pain follows physic you are doing the bowels an injury. You are wrecking the stomach, too.

You are causing the bowel lining to harden, just as the skin gets callous under irritation.

Then the bowels cease to supply their own laxative, and you have constipation.

Harsh physic also inflames the stomach, and the result is dyspepsia.

Constipation and dyspepsia are generally due to salts, castor oil or cathartics.

You can get the same help without the slightest danger of injury.

Cascarets are just as effective Yet they are gentle, acting in Nature's way.

No pain, no griping, no irritation. Take one daytime or night-time—whenever you need it. Correct the trouble at the start.

You won't need them long.

For Cascarets are curative. Their action is to set the bowels right.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The box is marked like this:

BARREL MAKER REPORTS APPLE CROP FAILURE

Coopers Declare Their Business Suffers as Result of Late Frost.

SHORTAGE IN OZARKS

Peaches and Strawberries Damaged Also—Fruit Prices to Be High.

The apple crop of Southern Missouri and Northern Arkansas will not be more than 10 or 15 per cent of normal. The frost of the night of April 29 killed much of the fruit.

This was the report made Wednesday by J. E. Mulvey to the National Slack Cooperage Manufacturers' Association in session at the Southern Hotel.

It was the most important thing learned by the delegates to the convention, who come from all parts of the country. In a general way they had known that the apple crop in those districts had been almost ruined by the frost, but they lacked official confirmation of it.

Mr. Mulvey is in the cooperage business in Memphis, Tenn. It is a part of the business of a manufacturing cooper to know the prospects of the apple crop at this season because upon that crop depends the demand for a large part of the cooperage output.

Peaches Also Damaged.

Mr. Mulvey has just returned from a trip of 10 days in which he visited all the Ozark apple country. He found the apple crop badly damaged, and that the peach and strawberry output would be not nearly so good as that of last year.

This announcement by Mr. Mulvey corroborated information previously received by the coopers from their agents throughout the apple country of Missouri and Arkansas. It was reported, too, that the apple crop in Southern Illinois had been badly damaged by the frosts and that there would not be half a crop.

C. M. Van Aken of New York reported that it was too early to foretell the outcome of the apple crop there. The same report was made from Northern Ohio and Michigan.

This news of a comparative crop failure from the richest apple producing territory in this country added to the worries to the manufacturing coopers. They were already facing a greatly lessened demand and a greatly reduced price for their products because of overproduction. The failure of the apple crop in so wide a territory will lessen the demand yet more and many plants will shut down.

"I was 10 days on the trip," said Mr. Mulvey, "and I visited personally all the chief apple shipping points in Missouri and Kansas and drove to the largest orchards and examined the trees and talked with the growers and shippers.

"There will not be 10 per cent of a normal crop."

Means High Price for Apples.

This means that apples will be higher priced this fall in St. Louis than they were last fall and winter.

"The utilization of the wood of the gum tree for the making of barrel staves has worked a revolution in the timber business in Arkansas,' said S. W. Stirlen, who has at Parkin, on the St. Francis river, one of the largest cooperage plants in this country.

"This resolution has all come about in the last six years," he continued. 'Six years ago you couldn't sell barrel staves made of gum wood. The coopers said it was too' brittle and was so smooth that the truss hoops would not stick on it. In those days nearly all the staves were elm.

"Now 75 per cent of all the slack-barrel staves are gum, and it is almost as good as elm. The demand created has been the salvation of many a section of Arkansas. Before we began to use that wood for staves a man couldn't market a gum log.

Gum Timber of Value Now.

"When clearing land of gum timber it was barked and deadened and then burned on the ground as worthless. Now a good price is paid for it. There are millions of acres of it in Arkansas, so you can imagine what it means in money to the State.

"We are discovering, too, that the gum makes good lumber. Millions of feet of it is sold every year for satinwood and walnut. Many of the finest houses in St. Louis are finished with it. I have sold many a car of it at my mill at $24.

"The cooperage business is one of the few in this country that is not in a trust," said W. C. Hartman of Detroit, Mich. "It would be impossible to get the manufacturing coopers into a trust. There are 1300 manufacturers of slack cooperage alone in this country, and only 125 of them are in our association, which is one of the largest in the country.

Trust Levies Tribute.

"But the trust exacts tribute from us just the same. The steel round wire hoop which you see on many barrels is made by the Steel Trust. It is cheaper than a wooden hoop and more serviceable."

J. S. Palmer of Sebewaing, Mich., secretary-treasurer of the organization, says the chief objects of the association are to establish standard grades of stock, uniform sizes of packages and the popularization of the barrel as the most sanitary package in the world. Coopers always speak of a barrel as a package.

"When properly made a barrel is dust proof, it can be handled cheaper than a box and will stand more knocking around," said an expert. "The barrel is the only sanitary package for flour and sugar.

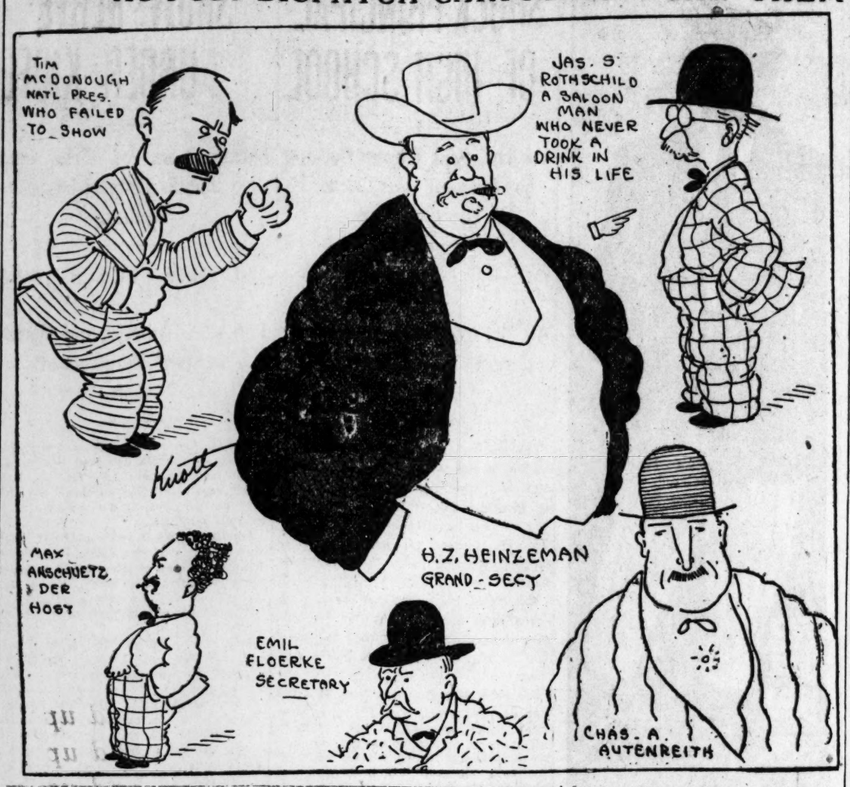

A "slack" barrel is one that is not water-tight. It is made to hold flour, sugar, produce, crockery and like commodities. A "tight" barrel is one that holds liquids, such as molasses, meats in brine, oils and whisky. The two businesses of slack and tight barrel making are entirely distinct. Machinery of a different character is used in each business. And the making of barrel stock, the staves, heads and hoops, are entirely distinct from the making of the barrels.

George W. Core of Ohio and Arkansas has been making barrel stock for many years, but he never saw a barrel made.

MEN WHO ARE KEEPING MISSOURI "WET," AS POST-DISPATCH CARTOONISTS SAW THEM

THOUSANDS WILL RESUME WORK IN FACTORIES JUNE 1

Six Large St. Louis Concerns Take Lead, and Prosperity Association Asks Employers in Other Cities to Follow Example.

June 1 will see thousands of men and women whom the late financial stringency threw out of work in their places again. Before the general call to employers, manufacturers, jobbers, bankers and others to re-employ their suspended workmen, six large St. Louis concerns announced their intention of opening on the old scale June 1.

The Simmons Hardware Co., Ferguson-McKinney Dry Goods Co., Ely & Walker Dry Goods Co., the National Enameling Works, Heimholz Furnace Co. and the Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co will start their machines on full time.

Wednesday letters will be mailed by the National Prosperity Association to all merchants, manufacturers, financial institutions, railroads and others, asking them to join a concerted movement to make June 1 a red letter day in the business world by not only putting back to work those whom they were compelled to lay off for a time, but also, if possible, to employ a few more and increase their output.

Business Reason Given.

The Prosperity Association makes the plea on the ground that the old stocks have been so depleted by the nonproduction period as to warrant full time at the machines and increased stocks all along the line.

The work will not be confined to St. Louis alone. Letters will be sent to large employers of labor everywhere, asking them to report to the association the numbers of men put back to work.

Wednesday there will be made public letters from commercial associations in all parts of the country, as well as from merchants, manufacturers and others, showing that the germ of prosperity is at work everywhere and that conditions have improved steadily during the last few weeks, and that the corner of slack times has not only been turned, but has been left well behind.

Telling the business man how to become an optimist and giving him the prescription for the remedy for hard times will be the work of a letter which will be sent to 100,000 financial, agricultural, commercial and manufacturing organizations. The text will be, "give us a test and sunshine."

Co-Operation Is Wanted.

Concerted action and co-operation among the business men of the country, regardless of politics or any other disturbing influence, will be urged for the revival of trade and the restoration of confidence.

Re-employment, says the letter, will be one of the things most urgently needed to place the country where it stood before the "panic," with a preference shown to old employes, with no reduction in the standard of wages.

An indication of the return of activity is a strong movement in the dry goods trade. Jobbers report that a larger attendance of buyers from the country in St. Louis and an increasing daily value of mail orders.

SAYS HE WANTS SLEEP, THEN SWALLOWS POISON

A few minutes after telling his wife that he was going to take a "long sleep," Fred Plegar, 40, swallowed carbolic acid at his home, 6802 Smiley avenue, and died.

Plegar told his wife Tuesday that he did not wish to be disturbed during the day. He then retired to his room. At 7 p. m. Mrs. Plegar went to call him for supper and found his body sitting upright in a chair, the acid bottle near.

Reprint Home Recipe—Many Thin Women Now Plump and Pretty

Madame Moneaux, deceased beauty specialist of New York, long possessed the greatest of all secrets pertaining to feminine charms. And what is the great secret so much desired by women—the secret that has made a vast fortune for the Madame's heirs, and that brought her all the famous actresses and society leaders for patrons?

It is a simple but sure method of developing the bust, arms and neck of women who through defect of nutrition and circulation, are humiliated by undeveloped arms, neck and bust. The treatment consists of applying a powerful but harmless nervine-stimulaut to the cells of the skin, to be absorbed and utilized as nourishment to the flesh cells and tissues. Beautiful changes are wrought. Ugly, deformed women are developed into charming personages, with well rounded arms and neck and full normal bust of exquisite curve and proportion so much admired in our great actresses and society leaders. Any leading druggist will supply the ingredients to mix at home, and, as they are used for various prescriptions, no one need be the wiser as to what they are to be used for, which is as it should be for modest womanhood. Get separately "two ounces glycerine," "three ounces Rose Water" and "one ounce Tincture Cadomene" and five cents worth of borax. Take home, mix the glycerine with Tincture Cadomene, shake and let stand two hours; then add a teaspoonful of borax and the rose water. Shake well and apply to the neck, arms and bust, rubbing and massaging until completely absorbed; then wash thoroughly with hot water and soap and dry thoroughly. Apply morning and night regularly for several weeks, and the most beautiful development will begin to reward the efforts. It is believed by experts to be the most necessary and effective prescription ever conceived.

This is worth keeping, if not for yourself, for some dear friend who needs it.

FEEDING FOR HEALTH

Directions by a Food Expert.

A complete change in food makes a complete change in the body. Therefore if you are ailing in any way, the surest road back to health is to change your diet. Try the following breakfast for ten days and mark the result:

Two soft boiled eggs (if you have a weak stomach, boil the eggs as follows: Put two eggs into a pint tin cup of boiling water, cover and set off the stove. Take out in nine minutes; the whites will be the consistency of cream and partly digested. Don't change the directions in any particular), some fruit, cooked or raw, cooked preferred, a slice of toast, a little butter, four heaping teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts with some cream, a cup of properly boiled Postum Food Coffee.

The Grape-Nuts breakfast food is fully and scientifically cooked at the factory, and both that and the Postum have the diastase (that which digests the starchy part) developed in the manufacture. Both the food and the coffee, therefore, are predigested and assist, in a natural way, to digest the balance of the food. Lunch at noon the same.

For dinner in the evening use meat and one or two vegetables. Leave out the fancy desserts. Never overeat. Better a little less than too much.

If you can use health as a means to gain success in business or in a profession it is well worth the time and attention required to arrange your diet to accomplish the result. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

LIQUOR DEALERS IN CONVENTION LIGHT DRINKERS

One of Them, in Business a Half Century, Never Drank a Drop.

There was less drinking among the liquor dealers of Missouri, who have just closed a convention here, than there usually is among dealers in other commodities who hold conventions in St. Louis.

There was one delegate, now gray-haired and venerable, who has been in the liquor business since he was 16 years old, and who has never taken a drink nor smoked in all his life. He is James S. Rothschild. He has kept a saloon for 20 years at the same place on Elm street.

"I've made two discoveries as the result of a lifetime spent in the liquor business," says Mr. Rothschild. "One is that it does not pay to drink, and the other is that it does not pay to be in the saloon business. The reason I hold my age so well, and am so full of life and vigor, is that I never took a drink in my life. The reason I have no money is that I have been in the liquor business all my life. There's no money in it.

Defends the Business.

"It's perfectly proper for a man to drink if he wishes to and can afford to. I wish there were more drinkers, and that they would all come to my place to drink. And it is perfectly proper for a man to go in the liquor business. It is as respectable as any other business."

The following officers were elected: President, Henry Stuhlmann, St. Louis; first vice-president, Joseph Diem, St. Louis County; second vice-president, J. J. Nestor, Springfield; secretary, H. J. Hinsmann, St. Louis; treasurer, Charles A. Autenrieth, Clayton; sergeant-at-arms, J. Rothschild, St. Louis.

Ministers' "Slimy Trail."

Resolutions protesting against the general condemnation of the liquor trade because of "the lawlessness of a few" were passed at the afternoon session. The resolutions declare that local option is "a seductive form of prohibition, advocated by men who pose as Christian ministers of the Gospel, but who preach the doctrine of Mohammed and Brigham Young—irresponsible and restless individuals who are here today and away tomorrow, leaving behind them a slimy trail of dishonor and destruction."

Robert J. Halle, secretary of the National Liquor League of America, who attended the convention, declares that the prohibition wave has already begun to subside everywhere.

"Prohibition is simply a craze," said Mr. Halle, "and like all other crazes, it will run its course, and then die. Already the business men of this country are seeing that the work of the prohibitionists has hurt business and lowered rents and depreciated the values of property.

Business Men's Meeting.

"Last week I attended a meeting of 200 of the shrewdest business men in Chicago, who came together to protest against prohibition agitation. These men were not interested in any way in the liquor business. They were business men and property owners, and they agreed that the prejudice being created against the liquor business was hurting business of all kinds. When men wake up like that, it means something.

"Prohibition has been tried for several months in Georgia, and already it has proven itself a failure. The wholesale liquor men who were driven out of Georgia have established themselves outside the State and are doing a larger and more profitable business than ever, shipping liquor into Georgia. That is how prohibition works. There is $40,000 worth of liquor being shipped into Georgia every day.

INDIAN GIRL MATCHED WITH RIFLE EXPERT

Princess Chan-tan-ku-tea, the young Indian woman with the 101 Ranch Wild West show under tent at Handlan Park, Grand and Laclede avenues, will show what a woman can do with the rifle when pitted against a champion of the traps. H. S. Maitland, president of the Fern Glen Amateur Gun Club, and who is a crack shot with rifle, gun and revolver, has challenged the Indian maiden to a trial of skill.

The contest will take place in the arena at the show grounds Thursday night. Princess Chan-tan-ku-tea can shoot by artificial light quite as well as by sunlight, and in this probably has a slight advantage over Mr. Maitland, who will match her in other respects, and perhaps has a shade the better of it with the shotgun.

Chan-tan-ku-tea has a record of having repeatedly broken 24 out of 25 clay pigeons with the rifle, a feat which few men have equalled.

Wednesday afternoon the seats beneath the canopy surrounding the arena at the 101 show were full of the happiest children in St. Louis. They were the guests of the Miller Brothers and came from the various orphanages in the city. Joseph C. Miller is particularly fond of playing the host to the "kids" who cannot afford to go to see the cowboys and Indians because they have no papas and mammas to take them.

Last year at Brighton Beach, N. Y., where the show was playing, he entertained every orphan in New York and Brooklyn at the show. It is Mr. Miller's desire to entertain the orphans of St. Louis in like manner if the managers of institutions will make application for their children.

MAN, WITH CLUB, KILLS DOG WHICH SAVES CHILD'S LIFE

Parents Believed Excited Canine Hero, Dumbly Seeking Help, Had Gone Mad.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

RICHMOND, Va., May 20.—Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McAllister of Quentin owe the life of their child to the faithfulness of a setter dog. While the 4-year-old boy of the McAllisters was looking for flowers in the woods and fields near his home, the little fellow tumbled into a creek.

Leo, the dog, plunged into the stream, caught the clothes of the child in his mouth and dragged him to land. He then ran home, bounded into the house and sprang upon Mrs. McAllister, pulling and tugging at her garments in an effort to induce her to follow him.

Seeing the wet and bedraggled condition of the dog and his foam-flecked mouth, Mrs. McAllister concluded the dog was mad, and her husband struck him over the head with a club, cracking his skull.

The dog, despite his mortal wound, succeeded in leading McAllister to the half-drowned boy, after which he crawled off into the weeds and died. The body of the faithful Leo was carefully buried today with appropriate ceremonies, and the grave covered with flowers.

WRIT TO STOP BIBLE-READINGIN SCHOOLS DENIED

Catholics Lose Mandamus Petition Brought at Winchester, Ill.

The movement started by Catholics in different parts of the country during the past few years to eliminate reading of the Bible in the public schools received a setback in Winchester, Ill. Judge Robert B. Shirley of the Winchester Circuit Court has handed down a decision against the mandamus proceedings brought by Catholics of that place.

The Catholics contended that under the Constitution all public schools are non-sectarian, and that consequently reading from parts of the Protestant Bible was in violation of this, as was also the singing of Protestant hymns.

Last October in Winchester Father Bell, pastor of the Catholic Church at Winchester, filed a petition asking that the reading of the Bible and the singing of the hymns be stopped. When this was denied the mandamus proceedings were brought by several prominent Catholics in the town. Judge Shirley took the case under advisement last month.

The Catholics have appealed to the Supreme Court.

Patrolman Cotter Has Finest Pair of Calves

NO MEMBER of the police force has a pair of calves like Patrolman William Cotter. More than 100 persons have gone to his home at 4746 Ashland avenue to see this policeman's calves.

They are black but the feet are white. The calves, which many have gone to see, are not the ones which support Cotter as he walks his beat.

They are the twin offspring of "Rossy," a Holstein-Jersey cow which Cotter owns.

Twins are extremely rare in cowdom, so rare that even "Rossy" seems conscious that she has done something out of the ordinary. She is proud and haughty and she won't let anyone go near her precious twins. When an intruder approaches she tosses her pair of sharp horns in angry warning.

The calves are only four days' old, but they are as full of life as a pair of kittens.

Neighbors have engaged in friendly rivalry in suggesting names for them but they have not yet been christened.

SCHOOL BOYS ARE EAGER IN LEAGUE GAME

Post-Dispatch Announcement Creates Excitement Among Students.

FATHERS GOING, TOO

Contest in Central Division Is Now Being Investigated.

The announcement in Tuesday's Post-Dispatch that the 500 players in the Post-Dispatch Public School and Parochial School Baseball leagues would be taken out to see the Browns play the Philadelphia Athletics, at American League Park, June 7, caused much excitement at the schools Wednesday.

The boys are jubilant over the prospect of seeing the game about which they are enthusiastic played by experts.

Several of the fathers of the boy players have sent word to the office of the leagues in the Post-Dispatch Building that they will attend the same game, in order to explain the fine points of the game to the youthful enthusiasts.

Seasons Will End in June.

The seasons of the two school leagues will end the first week in June. Then will begin the series of games for the school championship of the city between the pennant winners of the parochial and public school leagues.

The Clark and Marquette schools are still battling for the pennant in the West End division of the Public School League. The Ashland has won the pennant in the North End division and the Froebel has come out first in the South Side. The Madisons have won in the River division.

In the Central division, the Garfield team was declared the pennant winner by the Post-Dispatch manager of the league, but protests were filed by the Wyman and Divoll teams, who allege that in the game against Divoll, the Garfield boys played a "ringer." These protests are now being investigated.

Games Next Week.

Next week will be a busy one in the league, as it will be necessary to play several midweek games in order to finish up the season by the end of the first week in June.

The Rock Church team has practically won the pennant in the parochial league. It has won every game it has played and is so far ahead that it is practically impossible for any other team to overtake its lead.

WOMAN ARRESTS NEGRO FOR BEATING HIS HORSE

Then the "Prisoner" Flees Leaving Animal and Wagon in Her Possession.

Mrs. Anna Long, member of the Humane Society, saw a negro beating a horse near her home, 6562 McCune avenue, Tuesday afternoon, and when he refused to obey her command to cease she arrested him. The negro fled, leaving his horse and wagon in Mrs. Long's custody.

She notified the police and they learned the horse and wagon were the property of the Busby Express Co.

The management sent to Mrs. Long's home for the outfit, but were told by her that they could have their property only when she had been informed that the negro was under arrest. Police of Central District later arrested John Lenore, 2011 Olive street. Then Mrs. Long turned the horse and wagon over to the owner.

THE COOLEST SHOPPING PLACE

Thursday Morning at 9 O'Clock We Will Inaugurate Our Greatest Sale of

Lounging Robes, Dressing Gowns, House Gowns

WE cannot lay too much emphasis upon the importance of this sale, and urge every woman interested in apparel of this character to be present at its inaugural Thursday morning at 9 o'clock.

The entire sample line of House Gowns, Lounging Robes, Tea Gowns, Dressing Gowns, Long Kimonos and Dressing Sacques from New York's foremost manufacturer has been secured for the occasion.

THERE are about 200 garments in all. In the eyes of the maker, the quantity is trivial, and being influenced to a great extent by the volume of regular business we do with him, he sold them to us at about half the cost to manufacture, and we in turn offer them to you at a very slight advance.

Garments worth $10.00, $12.50, $13.50 and up to $15.00 at $4.95
Garments worth $15.00, $18.00, $20.00 and up to $30.00 at $7.50
Garments worth $20.00, $25.00, $30.00 and up to $50.00 at $9.95

YOU will find these garments in the condition you expect to find samples; some a trifle mussed from having been handled; otherwise they are perfect. A little pressing or cleaning, as the case may be, will make them worth full value. As there is only one of each style, you can readily understand how difficult it would be to give a detailed description, but here is an inkling of what you will find:

The $9.95 group embraces 47 garments; among them are Chiffon Cloth Dressing Gowns mounted over taffeta; elaborately inserted with lace; the making alone of these garments cost more than we are asking. There are also about six gowns of black taffeta, Surah silk and peau de cygne; trimmed with black silk lace; about half dozen Lingerie Robes, elaborately trimmed with very fine lace, which, by the way, costs more than the price we ask. The balance of the garments are heavy quality Jap and China silk; in all colors; some all-over accordion plaited; others elaborately trimmed with lace and medallions; each one is a model of exceptional merit; values ranging from $20.00 to $50.00; all priced at $9.95.

The $7.50 group comprises mostly China Silk garments; in all colors; elaborately trimmed; also Robes and House Gowns of fine quality French flannels; some hand-embroidered, and a number of satin-striped challis and fine albatross, in all the light and dark shades; either fancy trimmed or plain; just what you require for traveling purposes; $15.00, $20.00 and up to $30.00 values; $7.50.

The $4.95 group embraces short Dressing Sacques of silk or albatross, also full length Tea Gowns, House Gowns and Traveling Robes of French flannels, albatross and challis; all very high-class garments; made of finest materials and exquisitely trimmed. You can't buy the material alone for the price we are asking; they are $10.00, $12.50, $13.50 and up to $15.00 values; all priced for this occasion, $4.95.

The sale will begin Thursday morning at nine o'clock, on Third Floor, and only one garment will be sold to each patron. As there are only 200 in all, it is advisable to make your selection early

20,000 Philadelphia Fans Cheer Rube As He Beats His Old Team Mates

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—All hats off to Rube Waddell today. He turned a trick on dear old Philadelphia that no other ball player in the world could do. He beat the home team and was cheered by 20,000 of the mast loyal fans in the world.

It was the first time in history that Philadelphia has rooted for the visiting team. With Rube in the box, the St. Louis Browns thrashed the Athletics by a score of 5 to 2. The remarkable part of the performance was that every man, woman and child in that immense throng was for Rube Waddell. They were willing to sacrifice victory for their team in a championship game just to see their pitcher of former years win the contract. It was Rube's day from start to finish.

All loyalty to the Athletics was tossed to the wind when Rube Waddell, now with the Browns, was doing the pitching. The great crowd yelled with delight as Rube cut the ball over the plate and fanned out the idolized hitters of the home team and the crowd cheered further when the Browns opened up a batting rally in the seventh inning and won the game.

20,000 Paid to See Rube.

Rube paid for himself in one game All by himself he drew a crowd of 20,000 persons when it is doubtful if 4000 would have attended under ordinary conditions. At least two factories closed their doors at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon to allow the workmen to attend the game. Business down town was almost suspended. It was not to see the Browns and Athletics play ball that the people thronged the grounds. It was to see Rube pitch once more.

Back on the players' bench of the Athletics sat Connie Mack, hidden from the view of the crowd. He did not dare show his face, for had not he sold this beloved son to St. Louis? It was a bitter pill for Mack to swallow as he sunk back further and further in his hiding place and watched big Rube beat his team with ease and grace.

And such pitching as Rube did. For the first three innings he was just a bit off form. The Athletics hit five safe ones on him in that time and scored two runs. Then Rube closed up on them. Not another run came in. Better and better he grew and louder and louder cheered the fans. Then Rube wound up his great day with a grand climax by fanning out the side in the ninth inning.

Crowd Fills the Field.

A half hour before time for gong, ropes were stretched across left field. Just a few minutes before time to begin, right field was also roped and dozens of men carried in benches to accommodate the overflow from the grandstand back of the diamond. The management gave out the turnstile count as 20,191, and the crowd seemed to be that great.

The big Indian, Chief Bender, was chosen as the pitcher for the Athletics. Side by side for five years Bender and Waddell had toiled for the glory of Philadelphia. Now they were to fight each other.

For the first three innings it seemed that the Athletics were going to force Rube to take a beating. Two men got on the bases in the first inning, but Rube crawled out of that hole with colors flying. Then Bender startled the Browns by fanning three in the first inning.

In the second inning the Browns could do nothing with the speed and curves of the big Indian. Then in their half of the second, the Athletics banged in a run. With one man out, Catcher Smith smashed the ball into the crowd in right field for two bases. Oldring whacked a single to center and Smith scored. The next two batters went out and left Oldring dead at first.

Hoffman shook a bit out of the ginger out of Bender in the third inning by driving a double into the right field crowd, but there were two men out at the time and the next batter grounded out to Collins.

In the fourth inning the Rube became good. The home batters went out in order as they faced him and it was easy to see that Rube had struck his stride.

Then in their half of the fourth, the Browns further disturbed Bender by getting two men on the bases with one out, but a lucky double play spoiled the chances for scoring that time. The same luck favored the Athletics again in the fifth and saved Bender's hide. Three men were on the bases, but one out when a double play ended the frame without a run.

In the sixth the Browns started scoring and whipped home one run. Stone was safe when his smash got through Jimmy Collins. Williams banged a double into the crowd in left center and Stone had to stop at third. Wallace grounded out to Murphy, but Stone scored on the play. Ferris popped to Nichols and Tom Jones rolled an easy one also to Nichols.

Put Over More Runs.

However, the fire had been started and the Browns made it blaze in the seventh inning and burned in enough runs to win the game. Spencer opened this time with a driving single to right. Waddell fanned in trying to sacrifice. Hoffman lifted the ball into the right-field crowd for the limit of two bases and Spencer was at third. Charley Jones boosted a short fly back of second that fell safely for a single and Spencer sprinted home after Oldring failed to speed up enough to make the catch. Hoffman was held at second, as he feared the ball would be caught. However, Stone stirred up further trouble by cutting one just inside third base for a double and Hoffman scored while C. Jones raced to third.

Williams then slapped a stinging single to center and both C. Jones and Stone scored, but Jimmy was caught between first and second when he tried to go to the middle bag on the throw to the plate. Wallace ended the inning with a pop fly to Murphy.

Bender was removed from the box after this onslaught and Vickers took his place, and there was no more scoring by the Browns, but they didn't need any more for Rube was holding the Athletics hitless all the time.

HOW RUBE LOOKED TO PHILADELPHIA WRITERS

BY FRANK HOUGH,
Sporting Editor of the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Rube Waddell looked as good as ever to me. I watched him for five years here, and of course have seen him pitch better ball at times than he did yesterday. But he seems to have lost none of his speed, and I believe he will have a good year. I wish we had him back here again and I think there will be a lot of us who will be wishing the same thing.

BY HORACE FOGEL,
Sporting Editor Philadelphia Telegraph.

It looked like the same old Rube game. I was certainly surprised He has as much speed as ever and seemed to be in shape. Rube has a lot of friends in this town and they will never forget the grand work he did for us for five years. He will win a lot of games this year for St. Louis, and if McAleer can give him another good twirler to help him out the Browns will have a chance.

COMMENT ON THE GAME.

Rube Waddell was presented with a handsome shotgun and fishing rod by his Philadelphia admirers. The whole outfit is said to be worth more than $100.

Danny Hoffman had a lot of friends in the crowd, too, who remembered him from former days of service with the Athletics. Danny drove out a single and two doubles in five times at the bat. Besides that he made a wonderful throw from right field that chopped Bender off by six feet at the plate when he tried to come home after a fly ball had been caught. Danny shot the ball in a line and the first bound was right at Spencer's knee.

Joe Quirk, the new trainer, had Waddell in charge from 11 o'clock the previous night until time to start the game. He gave him an electric treatment and rubbed his arm until the big twirler was in grand shape. He showed more speed and better control than at any time this spring.

Topsy Hartsell tried Waddell's weakness, fielding bunts, right at the start of the game. He rolled one between Rube and first base. Rube made the play nicely, but Tom Jones had come in after it, too, and no one was covering first base, so Hartsell got credit for a hit. Only four clean hits were made off Rube and two of these were doubles into the crowds.

Jimmy Collins was charged with two errors during the game. Once he fired a wild one to Davis in the first inning, when C. Jones beat out a slow one along the third-base line, and in the sixth inning he let Stone's smash go right between his feet.

Bobby Wallace is limping a bit today from a slight twist of the ankle received in a close play at second base. Trainer Quirk doctored the injury last night and says it will not keep Bob out of the game.

LOBERT IS AND IS NOT COMING; TAKE YOUR PICK

Trade of Beebe and McGlynn for Reds' Shortstop Is in Tangle.

"To come or not to come," is the problem that St. Louis fans want solved in the matter of Lobert, as the possible successor of O'Rourke as shortstop for the Cardinals.

If one takes the verbal statements of those most concerned, the matter is doubtful; but the inside facts, as they come from Cincinnati make it probable that Lobert will be a member of the Cardinals' infield next week.

Here are the various statements in regard to the matter:

Garry Hermann: "The deal has been considered but not closed. Lobert does not want to go to St. Louis, and the National Commission has yet to pass upon the case of Dave Brain, whom we recently acquired. The trade considered was for Beebe and McGlynn."

Trying, but Not Yet.

Jawn McCloskey: "I would be the first to tell you if we had closed the deal for Lobert. We have been trying hard, but had reached no conclusion."

Stanley Robison: "Cincinnati wanted our pitchers for cash, but I would not sell. Ganzel refused to trade Lobert, although we offered McGlynn and Beebe. No deal has been made, although our offer is still open, and if Ganzel will come to time we will accept terms."

And there you are—so much for spoken testimony.

The whole tempest had its origin in an item printed in the Cincinnati Enquirer Tuesday morning, which says that Mowery's return to Cincinnati is all Ganzel is awaiting before completing the deal.

Where It Started.

Following is the substance of that article:

"The deal with St. Louis has not been consummated, as Lobert is needed here until Mowrey returns from his home in Baltimore. Red Mike wired President Herrmann yesterday that if all goes well he will be back not later than Saturday or Sunday. Meanwhile Hans is playing a great third base. Lobert is in great demand. Manager McGraw yesterday offered Pitcher Leon Ames in exchange for him, wishing to play Hans at the Giants' second bag, but his offer was not considered for two reasons. In the first place, Manager Ganzel thinks that Beebe and McGlynn will strengthen the club more than Ames would, and in the second place, if the break were an even one Mr. Herrmann would prefer to help out a second division club than to add additional strength to the Giants, who are formidable enough anyway. As soon as Mowrey returns from Baltimore the trade with the Cardinals will be officially announced, and Beebe and McGlynn will be added to the Red pitching staff at once. All the Giants think that Lobert and Capt. Donlin would like to see him a member of their team. They wanted him last winter, but at that time no trade for him would be considered by the Cincinnati club, and now it is too late for New York to get him."

BURNS' MANAGER ON WAY TO GET THAT $35,000

OAKLAND, Cal., May 20.—"Billy" Neall left Oakland for Denver to collect $35,000 deposit from a Denver syndicate headed by Otto Floto, a well-known sporting man of that city, for the fight between Jack Johnson and Tommy Burns for the heavyweight championship of the world in Goldfield, next fall, articles for which were signed in London yesterday.

Neall was requested by Tommy Burns to act as stakeholder and collect the guarantee money of the fight promoters.

JOCKEY LEE NOW AT BELMONT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 20.—J. Lee, the only rider who has ever won an entire program of six races during an afternoon, arrived at the Belmont Park track today. He had been riding at the New Orleans tracks during the winter, but receptly devoted his attention to winning races at Churchill Downs, Kentucky.

Turfmen say that he has improved 50 per cent in skill over last year and that he is now a first-class rider.

TWO STARS WHOM McGRAW DOES NOT WANT TO TRADE

CHAMPION GOTCH FAILS TO THROW OLSEN IN LIMIT

In a match which, in the judgment of experts, was decided strictly on its merits, Frank A. Gotch, world's champion wrestler, failed to throw Charles Olsen in 15 minutes at the Standard Theater last night, and consequently forfeited $100 to the lanky German who has called St. Louis his home for the past two years. The match drew a packed house.

Olsen was on the defensive at all times. He made no effort to secure holds on Gotch, and was out to stay the limit only. Gotch agreed to bar the toe hold. Olsen has met Gotch in best two out of three fall matches, and in spite of the fact that he has given the champion some terrific battles, did not want to take a chance of being laid up with a sprained ankle or being thrown by the toe hold for a comparatively small sum of $100.

For the first five minutes of the bout last night Olsen did everything possible to keep his feet. Gotch finally dropped him to the mat. Gotch tried for numerous holds, but Olsen slipped out of them. Gotch, with a half Nelson, almost put Olsen down at the 10-minute mark. Olsen gritted his teeth and by a great effort managed to work his way out of the hold. Gotch picked him up and slammed Olsen down on his head with a crack. Olsen laid out straight and Gotch went after him fast and hard. He secured a half Nelson and worked the hold slowly. Olsen's shoulder went down, down, inch by inch; but he wiggled around and finally managed to throw his legs off the mat and then pull Gotch off with him, which gave him another chance, as Referee Thiry ordered the men back on the canvas.

One Minute to Go.

There was less than a minute left to wrestle. Gotch wanted Olsen to get down on the mat in the position he was before the referee ordered them back on the mat, but Olsen refused. Gotch chased Olsen about the mat and Olsen shot a stiff left to the face, sending Gotch's head back. Gotch caught Olsen, picked him up bodily and threw him in a heap on the canvas and fell on him, when the referee declared that time was up and the bout was stopped and Olsen declared the winner.

The moving pictures of the Gotch-Hackenschmidt match for the world's championship, decided in Chicago recently, will be shown at the Standard Theater starting this afternoon. Gotch meets a 240-pound wrestler this evening.

TWO CLUBS IN AT FINISH OF GOLF TOURNEY

Play Simmering Down to McKittrick, the Stickneys and Kenney.

Ralph McKittrick, Stuart Stickney or W. Arthur Stickney, all of the Country Club, vs. Christian Kenney of the Algonquin Club seems to be the conclusion to which the city golf championship tournament is gradually working.

A match that in a measure may decide the championship will be played this afternoon. Kenney will oppose Arthur Stickney. Their match will be in the third round, as both won yesterday. Ralph McKittrick will play C. A. Piepho of the Tuple A this afternoon and the winner of this match will meet Stuart Stickney in the third round.

Chris Kenney scored another one-sided victory yesterday, defeating Sol Swarts of the Country Club, 7 up and 6 to play. Kenney is playing a fine allround game.

If he does not let down today, he should give Stickney a terrific match, with the odds favoring a victory for the Algonquin Club man over the present city champion.

Stickney showed his mettle yesterday, however, when he won a hard-fought match from Charles Scudder, 1 up. Stickney was off his best game, while Scudder was in form, but was unfortunate, as he lost the ball on two different occasions, which resulted in a lost hole each time.

Tarleton Brown gave Stuart Stickney a good argument for a time, but Stickney won out, 4 up and 3 to play. Eugene Cuendet of the Country Club defeated Sam G. Davis, 2 up. William Orthwein defeated Dr. G. F. Paine, 3 up and 2 to play.

All of these matches were in the second round.

In the first round Jesse Carleton defeated Wallace Delafield Jr. of the Field Club, 1 up. C. A. Piepho of the Triple A defeated J. C. Lincoln of Glen Echo, 2 up and 1 to play. Bart Adams of Algonquin defeated F. E. Newberry, 6 up and 5 to play.

M'GRAW DENIES TRADE RUMORS

"I have positively no trade in view with St. Louis," said John J. McGraw, shortly after his arrival at the Planters Hotel with the New York Giants, this morning. McGraw, as cheerful and pert as when his team was winning world's championship honors, had heard of the rumors which connected him with a deal for one of McCloskey's pitchers.

"I have absolutely nothing in view right now, regarding a swap for a St. Louis player," he said.

"Then you will not make any trades while in this city?" he was asked.

"Well, now, one can never tell what will happen—but I have nothing in mind."

"Don't you need a pitcher?"

"Well, over in Cincinnati they had it that I wanted to let one go—for Lobert."

"Who will you work today?"

"I will put in either McGinnity or Ames."

The Giants just now are not breaking any records for good work, despite that slugging outfield. Its pitchers are none too good and with Christy Mathewson knocked out of the box last Monday, the team appears none too well equipped to fight its way clear of the second division. McGraw is carrying 25 men with him.

SMITH ATHLETES SET RECORD

J. C. Van Riper Wins Point Trophy With Three Victories.

Three new records were established at the annual field day for Smith Academy students held in the Stadium yesterday afternoon.

Blake bettered the shotput mark with a toss of 40 feet 3½ inches. Schopp threw the hammer 145 feet 9 inches and the discus 96 feet 5 inches.

J. C. Van Riper won the individual point trophy with a total of 19 points, finishing first in the half-mile run, broad jump and 440-yard dash. He also got second in the pole vault and third in the hammer throw. The fifth-year class team won the meet with a total of 58½ points.

WRAY'S COLUMN.

WHO is this Lobert, that three clubs are making all this coil about? Is he a Wagner or a Turner perchance, that he demands the sacrifice of one of the best right handers in the National League, with another sterling pitcher thrown into the bargain? Let's look up this phenomenon, who seems to be a demon athlete in the out or infield at the bat and on the bases.

The guide refreshes one's memory to the extent that last year in the National League Lobert batted .246, below his team mate Mowrey. He was third in fielding shortstops, below Bridwell, now of New York, and Dahlen, now of Boston. New York discarded Dahlen and now wants to replace Bridwell at shortstop by Lobert. He scored 61 runs on 132 hits. This year he has been doing well at the bat and on the bases, and making good in the outfield and at third base.

Thus the testimony is that Lobert is a good all-round man. But put his record up against the topnotch performance of Wagner, who in 142 games, five less than Lobert took part in, scored 98 runs on 180 hits.

Lobert, whether New York or St. Louis eventually gets him, will be a strong man for either team. But it is a dear price that the Cardinals propose to pay—Beebe and McGlynn. But when neccssity drives, managers needs must make sacrifices. With an abundance of good pitchers Robison is willing to strengthen his infield at the cost of his box department.

After looking at the manner in which good pitchers have their games thrown away for them by bad fielding, the reason for the proposed sacrifice is not wanting.

Hoyle left no record of an instance in which one Jack beat a pair of Kings. But a reference to the third race at Oakland yesterday will show that the thing can be done.

McAleer's men so far have held on to the fringe of the first division in the baseball race. Three games in six they have won since they started East, and today's contest with Philadelphia will give them an odd victory—should they win.

The problem of whom to pitch is rolling in the mind of Manager McAleer before each game like an alum powder biscuit in a weak stomach. What a pity it is that a merger between the present Browns and Cardinals cannot be effected. With the Browns' defense, the Cardinals' pitchers would go like whirlwinds and an all-St. Louis team would be weak only behind the bat.

McAleer's side of the baseball shield is precisely the obverse of McCloskey's. With that splendid fielding team—one which could stand up under fire when three pitchers were virtually knocked out of the box and make but one misplay, and that an accident, is one to read about. But unless some good fairy touches a magic wand to the forearms and shoulder muscles of the pitchers the club will be in distress all season. Right now McAleer has but one pitcher whom he can send to the box and rely upon—Howell. For the rest it looks like a scrap heap. Pelty seems gone for good. He was failing last year and he has pitched but one good contest this season—that against Cleveland, when he won. Graham will be good some day, and will win games for them now. But he is hardly of caliber now to oppose men like Dygert, Plank, Chesbro and that kind. Dineen and Powell are, so far disappointments, and it seems that a limit to hoping has about been reached. McAleer says he will suspend judgment until the real hot weather has been reached; but for the most part the judgment of the public has been passed on McAleer's staff. It is "Poilice verso"—"Thumbs down!"

"Go-as-you-please" golf tournaments are the fashion in St. Louis. A player is assigned a day and time to play a match, but he arranges things with his opponent so that they play when they wish to. Ordinarily in championship tournaments this would mean a default. In St. Louis it merely means that an admiring gallery has to come out some other day. Glen Echo is so convenient, too.

Dan McGann seems in a fair way to have last laugh on John McGraw, with whom he has had more than one war of words and at least one encounter of fists, with the New York leader over his release from the Giants. For Boston has as New York discards Bowerman, Browne, McGann and Dahlen, while New York took a few like Tenney and Bridwell in exchange. Now it would be unkind to suggest that Mr. McGraw's judgment had been stung in this case since the teams are separated by but .001 of a point, with the good prospect that Boston will go to the front. Although the Boston team plays the Cubs, it has about as good a chance of whipping the Chicagoans as New York has to beat Karger. With McGraw in second division and Boston in the first, the "old 'uns" can afford to have a smile at John J.'s expense.

SUBURBAN AND DELMAR SEASONS TO OPEN SUNDAY

"Trilby" and "The Fortune Teller" Are the Initial Offerings.

CREATORE SATURDAY

Will Play in Jai Alai Rink Garden—Midweek Amusement News.

The summer amusement season will be in full swing next Sunday when both the Delmar and Suburban theaters presentt heir opening bills. The Jai Alai Rink, transformed into a garden, opens on Saturday with Creatore's Band beginning a four weeks' engagement.

Suburban Theater's opening bill is "Trilby," with Miss Virginia Harned in the title role, which she created, and Mr. J. Gordon Edwards as Svengali. The cast will present nearly the full strength of the company, and a production is promised that will compare favorably with the original New York offering, in which Miss Harned and Wilton Lackaye scored their memorable successes.

"The Fortune Teller," the melodious comic opera written by Victor Herbert and Harry B. Smith as Alice Nielson's first starring vehicle, will be the attraction at Delmar Theater. Miss Mary Quive, the new prima donna, a sister of Grace Van Studdiford, will sing the role in which Miss Nielsen first appeared, and the cast will include John E. Young, the leading comedian; Stanley Hawkins, the new tenor, and nearly all the prominent members of the new Delmar company.

"Faust will be the offering at West End Heights next week, beginning Sunday afternoon. The excellent stock company, organized by D. E. Russell, manager of the theater, will be strongly cast for the play, with Frederick Montague at the head, and a capable production is promised.

"At Piney Ridge" is this week's bill.

"On the Bridge at Midnight" is the current attraction at Havlin's, and is drawing good houses. This house closes its season next Saturday night. There will be Thursday and Saturday matinees this week.

William B. Watson's Burlesquers come to the Standard next week, beginning with Sunday matinee. Entertaining burlesque and vaudeville specialties will constitute their offerings. This company will remain at the Standard until midsummer, giving a series of burlesque productions.

The Broadway Gaiety Girls and Frank Gotch are there this week.

The American's season closes next Sunday with the current bill, of which "Paradise Alley" is the topline feature. Berliner, the wonderful girl violinist, is one of the big favorites on the bill.

The "101 Ranch" Wild West Show at Handlan's Park is drawing big audiences to the afternoon and evening performances daily. It gives a stirring reproduction of actual life on the big Oklahoma ranch owned by the Miller Brothers, together with a representation of earlier frontier days; there are also some daring Cossack riding and a number of special features of exceptional interest.

At the Jai Alai Rink Garden, beginning next Saturday night, Creatore's Band will give nightly concerts for an engagement of four weeks, to be followed by other musical attractions of similar distinction. The Creatore program will be of a character to please all lovers of music.

Next week, opening Monday evening, the Stanley Stock Co. at Eclipse Garden will offer the Western drama, "Because He Loved Her So," with Arthur Stanley in the leading role and the company advantageously cast. Specialties will be introduced between the acts.

"Shall We Forgive Her?" is this week's offering.

Bafunno's Band is giving free concerts at Delmar Garden and a good attendance is the rule. Among the amusement concessions, all of which are now open, there are some new features of much interest.

The Imperial Minstrels are the attraction at Lemp's Park, also band concerts by Kaltenthaler's Orchestra. The minstrel company is composed of St. Louis talent and offers bright entertainment.

Band concerts are now being given at Mannion's Park. The regular season of high-class vaudeville will open on Sunday, May 31. Edward Savage, baritone, is soloist at this week's concerts.

Next week's vaudeville bill at Forest Park Highlands, beginning Sunday afternoon, will include the Mimic Four, Warren and Blanchard, Jane Courthope and Company, Esmathilde, Linden Beckwith and a new round of kinodrome pictures.

Bertha Pertina's dance is a feature of this week's bill, and the singing of Emma Partridge with the band is delighting big audiences.

Mrs. Schley: Chief, I'd like to employ some of your detectives to shadow my husband.

Big Chief: Why, what's up?

Mrs. Schley: Why, he brings me home flowers and candy every evening and calls me darling, too. There surely must be something terrible behind it all.

POLICEMEN RISK LIVES TO SAVE HORSES IN FIRE

Early Morning Blaze Damages Cooperage Plant to Extent of $8000 and Endangers Families.

At the risk of their lives, Policemen Hoffner and Hartung of the Wyoming Street Station entered the rear premises of the Jacob Loesch Cooperage Co. at 1 a. m. Wednesday, during a fire, and rescued five horses. They struggled with the animals until the building was burned all about them. In leading the horses out Hoffner's hands were badly burned.

When the first was first discovered, the presence of the horses was unknown to the police or firemen, but soon their cries of fright, and the noise they made kicking against their stalls, attracted attention, and the two policemen went to their rescue.

The horses, frenzied with fright, refused to be led and the two men had to blindfold them. One at a time, they managed to get them into the open before that part of the building was destroyed.

The families of J. C. Eapp and John Hock, living next door to the cooperage works, were taken from their homes by the police in their night clothes. The damage was estimated at $8000.

COUNCIL COMMITTEE FAVORS BUYING OLD FAIR GROUNDS

Only Three Speakers Oppose Purchase, on Ground of Residence Development.

After hearing 10 advocates of the purchase of the old Fair Grounds for a park, the City Council Committee on Ways and Means, reported favorably a bill authorizing the acquisition of the property for $700,000. The bill has gone to engrossment and will be put to a vote next Friday. It is believed the Council will pass it.

Only three speakers opposed the proposition. They were Henry Fairback, Farwell Walton and Wm. B. Cumberland. They asserted that the establishment of a park between Grand avenue, Fair avenue, Natural Bridge road and Kossuth avenue would prevent the development of residential sections north and south of it.

J. H. Gundlach, representing the Real Estate Exchange; Prof. Wm. Trelease of the Missouri Botanical Gardens, Frank M. Gerhart, Prof. J. S. Collins, assistant Superintendent of Education; Fred Swaine, Julius Pitzman, John Duffy, representing Park Commissioner Scanlan; Judge Charles F. Gallenkamp and C. C. Crone urged the passage of the bill. Mr. Crone insisted that some guaranty should be given the city that the property can be obtained for $700,000, in the event taxpayers vote the bonds for the purpose.

TOOTHPICK BUILDING IS 2 FEET WIDE, 3 STORIES

Shoemaker Builds Slender Structure in Reno, Nev., and Occupies It.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

RENO, Nev., May 20.—On a plot of ground 26 inches wide, a three-story building, the narrowest for its height, probably, in the world, has been constructed on Center street in this city.

It will not be used as a convention; Mr. Taft nor Mr. Bryan could enter the door to asknowledge his nomination, although Mr. Fairbanks might. It is not intended for a millinery shop, for the merry widow hat is already sawing the noses of Reno's male citizens. It will not be a saloon; there is not room to stagger in.

H. C. Gordon, a shoemaker, leased the ground and built the slim structure. He sleeps on the top floor and cannot turn around on his cot. His narrow bench is on the second floor. Customers sidle into his store on the ground floor, and in his show window he displays, one at a time, a pair of Chicago shoes.

Copyright 1908 by Hart Schaffner & Marx

It's a fine store; we've done our best to make it the best clothing store in St. Louis; we think it is. It's a store where you won't find anything but goods of the highest quality, at the lowest prices consistent with that standard.

We shall make a special feature of Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes; they're the best clothes made. The name of Hart Schaffner & Marx in a garment is a sign to you and to us that you're getting the best your money will buy in clothes; and that's what you want to get, and that's what we're in business to give you.

These clothes are guaranteed all-wool; there's a good deal of clothing that isn't. They are safe for you to buy in the part you can't see for yourself; lots of clothing isn't. We give you a positive guarantee that any Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes we sell that are not satisfactory, can be exchanged here for the money, or new clothes.

You'll find Hart Schaffner & Marx suits here at $18, $20, $22, $25, $28, $30, $35, $40. Some very light, thin, cool summer stuff—coat and trousers only—at $15. We have other clothes lower priced — $12.50; they're worth more than we charge for them.

OUR Manhattan shirts are sure to interest you; some new and unusually good patterns and colors; things not commonly shown; $1.50 to $3.50; some extra special golf shirts and outing shirts; $2, $2.50, $3, $3.50. Very smart stuff.

TAKE an early look at our neckwear department; an unusual lot of fine Four-in-Hands at 55 cents; worth a lot more than they cost.

ASK FOR THESE BRANDS. ACCEPT NO SUBSTITUTES.

Why? Because they are first-class in every respect, carefully selected, cured in this city by the old method, with the best materials, smoked with hickory wood only; absolutely clean and healthful. U. S. inspection made no change in the cure of our meats.

You want St. Louis business to prosper—we are strictly a St. Louis house—we and all our employes live and spend our money in this city. Then ask your Grocer or Butcher for our goods—give them a fair trial; if found satisfactory, accept no others. See that our brand is burned in on the skin side of the meat

CONSUMPTION

What is the cause? One of the principal reasons is impure food and water—avoid them and you will not have to sleep out in those perforated houses as a last resort.

I have discovered a remedy that no Roaches can live in your house, which contaminate everything you eat and drink. You catch them alive. One night is sufficient. No drugs or powder of any kind. Address by mail,

Society

THE handsome home of Gov. Lon V. Stephens in Cabanne was the scene of a delightful porch party Wednesday afternoon when Mrs. Stephens entertained the members of the Jefferson City Club and announced the engagement of her guest, Miss Nelle See, daughter of Mrs. Randolph E. See of Jefferson City, and Mr. Curtis A. Betts of St. Louis and a member of the Post-Dispatch staff. The wide gallery at the south of the Stephens home was inclosed by vines and banked with tall palms, ferns and big fluffy pink and white peonies in sweet grass baskets. Mrs. Stephens received her guests with Mrs. Claud Clark, who was one of the hostesses. Mrs. Clark and Mrs. Stephens wore all white toilettes and Miss See was in pale blue net and lace. The library was decorated attractively with white sweet peas and ferns and lace.

Miss See and Miss Grace Goode served frappe and punch. The guests included the members of the Jefferson City club which was organized a year ago and has as members the ladies who have at some time resided in the Capitol while their husbands held executive positions. Miss See is one of the pretty and popular girls of Jefferson City and has a wide circle of St. Louis friends. Mr. Betts is prominent in the newspaper world. No date for the wedding has been decided on. Some of the guests present were: Mesdames. Shepard Barclay, Thomas Wagner, Houston Forer, W. H. Grimes, Clifford McMillan, J. S. Sullivan, John D'Oench, Samuel Jeffries, W. S. Brotherton, William M. Ledbetter, Earl Chittenden, John Seetree, E. C. Crow, M. Standish, W. H. Bassett, J. C. Fisher, J. M. Hays, J. E. Wood, Lon V. Stephens, Claud Clark.

ST. LOUIS HAS SEVEN MILLIONS; SEE DIRECTORY

Two Thousands to Spare, According to Big Volume Just Issued.

FEW ARE GOODENOUGH

Several Citizens English, but Canvasser Found Only One Irish.

The new city directory appeared Wednesday. By the showing it makes, the Million Club can cease its labors. For St. Louis has seven Millions and two Thousands. The directory man found them all, and he gives the first names and addresses of all nine of them in the new volume.

He calls 51 of our residents Savage; 50 Wild, and says 22 are Wilder. The city he asserts, harbors four Crooks, three Gangs, five Idlers, five Outlaws, eight Rippers, one Robber, two Swindlers, and 42 Spies. He had the proverbial luck in his quest for a Policeman. He found none.

He found residing here only two Constables, six Officers, six Marshalls, two Ensigns, five Peelers, six Yeomans, ten Lackeys, a Doorman, a Driver and a Trusty.

He saw two Battles, one Fight, three Box, five Rounds, five Punches, two Frays, one Muss, two Revels and two Rows.

Places to Sleep.

He tells where to find the only Lair, seven Dirks, seven Bunks, four Bunkers, five Sleepers, and three Bums in town. He talked with our only Gambler, says there is but one Pack, eleven Cards, and seven Dice in the city. He asserts that 27 of our citizens are Lawless, three Lax, one Loose, and three Rotten; forgets to state that we have any virtue, names a solitary Sin, and a solitary Vice, and tells of six Sinning.

Our Good Qualities.

Many of our residents, he states, "are Good, yet only 10 are Goodenough and 20 Sterling, while but one is Manly. Among the 27 Gentry, he states, we possess, stand, side by side, our 7 Goodfellows, 10 that are Able, the 4 thaat are Blunt, the 7 Bold, 7 Hale and 5 that are Hearty, four he found Clever, 19 Smart, 32 Swift, 17 Quick, 2 Speedy and not one Slow.

Ten, he states, are Just and 5 Level, and he gives us 5 as Gallant and 10 as Fine, while 3 are Finer. One Brightman is all he found. He cites solitary instances of a Coward, a Crank, Curtman, a Hero, and 1 he calls Brave and another as a Idleman, besides a Spendthrift and 5 Willies.

Look in the Mirror.

Among us dwell 1 Prettyman, 3 he calls Pretty, 5 Lovely, 7 Gentle, 6 Mild, 1 Genial, 6 Merry, 12 Jolly, 27 Gay, 20 Meek, 17 Lively, 9 Coy, 4 Shy and 3 Sly.

A quartet is Constant and a like number True. He visited the only Lovecamp in the city and met 1 only Daisy, and confides that, while in quest of this information, he got 3 Winks, 15 Hugs and saw two Kiss.

Few Christians Here.

He found but 29 Christians here, and saw only one Pray and several he describes as Pope, a large number as Bishop. He conversed with four Chancellors, two Archdeacons, many Deans, five Monks, 19 Priests, 10 Rectors, 41 Parsons, seven Priors, eight Deacons and one that is Divine. Another he calls Pastor, and enumerates 48 Shepherds and only one Flock.

He says we possess only 28 Churches, three Abbeys, five Bethels, 45 Kirks, two Missions, 25 Temples, two Chapels, seven Paradises, four Heavens, 17 Keys, five Hells and 15 Diels, and describes our seven Creeds and five Faiths amongst our three Bigots.

The city's claim for being the home of erudition, must rest, according to him, on the possession of 77 whom he calls Wise, yet he found only 10 Books, 17 Readers and 24 who, he says, are Read.

We hold three Bards, 36 Lays, 10 Muses, two Sonnets and 26 Riddles. We number among us 10 Sages, two Seers, six that are Learned, while two are Learning. He found one Speaking prevailing, with two Letters, eight Sums and two specimens of Chalk.

Found No Lid Here.

He saw five Sundays here, but found no Lid. He tells where to find 11 Goodbars, and one Buffet. He noticed but two Drinkwater, found one Dry, nine Drier, four Full and ran across several Fuller.

He met two Blowers, three Puffers, —two Duffers, 14 Friends, two Lenders, 29 Chums, two that were Burst, five Stuck, a dozen Youngbloods and half a dozen Truebloods.

He tells of two Corners, three Brews, one Brand of a Liquor and of the only Smile he got. He locates two Leaks, witnessed two ..ocy, five Canning and one Repine.

Only One Is Irish.

St. Louis cannot be put on the map as being American, as he found none of that name here. He found one Knickerbocker and asserts that we have but one Cossack, one Grepser, one Kaffer and one Pole.

He designates but one as being Irish.

Vain Men, Gaze on Dave Ball, Who Is Not Proud or Ashamed of Being Homeliest Missourian

He Admits Being Plainer Than Abraham Lincoln, but Does Not Try to Make Capital by Appeal for Votes of Ugly Citizens.

BY MARGUERITE MARTYN

HOMELINESS can be construed into a virtue, if you draw your conclusion from the fact that beauty, on the other hand, fosters vanity, conceit and selfishness.

These are the sentiments of the Hon. Dave Ball, ugliest man in Missouri.

When I called on this prominent man, whose name will go before Democratic voters in the August primaries as a candidate for Governor, for the purpose of learning wherein he merited the most conspicuous of his titles and how he felt about bearing it, I did not know his sentiments.

Beauty and Goodness.

Had I known them, I should still have felt I had a ticklish task before me, for how many of us are eager to be reminded that we are virtuous at the cost of being considered lacking in every vestige of good looks?

That this man cheerfully acknowledges his title of the ugliest man in the State is as well known as is the title itself, but as I waited in the parlor of the Laclede Hotel, I was at a loss to decide by which path to approach the subject, which might be painful to him.

When he did appear, in my anxiety not to hurt his feelings, I fear I went to the other extreme.

A Pretty Speech.

"Mr. Ball," I said, "I should never have known you from your campaign pictures—they do not flatter you."

"That's just what all the ladies say"—and then he laughed—until he chose to relieve my suspense by saying: "The women, God bless them!

"Of the 33 murder cases I have defended, I have lost but two. The record is not bad, but the overwhelming regret of my life is that one of those cases had to be a woman.

"Oh, yes, those pictures do flatter me. They were gotten up complimentary to me, without my knowledge, and they are almost as good looking as Abe Lincoln was, I believe."

As Homely as Lincoln.

"But you don't think you are as homely as Abe Lincoln, do you?" I asked.

'Oh, yes, I am, and I am proud of it."

"Then perhaps it is your purpose in some way to champion the many whom the Goddess of Beauty has neglected."

It was a new experience to me to meet a man who seemed to possess not one spark of vanity. I felt I must account for it in some way.

"Oh, no," said he, "I have made no such plank as that in my platform. It has not been necessary for me to announce whether I am for or against homeliness. My friends have done that for me.

Score One for Character.

"I cannot see why ugliness or beauty should influence public opinion one way or another, and I think they do not, in the long run. Character rises uppermost.

"But it is my belief that homeliness is oftener the seat of virtue than beauty.

"A beautiful woman is apt to become vain, conceited, selfish, whether she means to or not. She is continually reminded of her personal appearance, if not by her mirror, by her well-meaning friends, and what time she spends in such contemplation could certainly be employed to better advantage. One moment of such conduct in a man is contemptible."

He Stood Real Still.

'I felt I was on safer ground now. I even dared to test my security by drawing a faithful likeness of him—and I noticed how patient he was about holding still. I told him of the certain ex-Congressman who went up in the air when he thought he was going to be "cartooned" by me for the Post-Dispatch.

"I should think," said Mr. Ball, "that he could stand it better than I, even though you made a caricature of him, for he is said to be a very handsome man.

Brought It on Himself.

"But I do not care what people think I look like. It may be that I brought this unenviable reputation on myself, when, years ago, I told about an honest old farmer who, meeting me for the first time, said: 'Well, I've heard a lot about you, Dave Ball, and I certainly expected to see a younger and a better looking man,' and he was mightily disappointed.

"The story grew, as stories will, you know, until now every story about an ugly man from Missouri fastens itself on me.

"I enjoy all good stories, but once in a while, as happened the other day, I do enjoy a joke on the other fellow.

Magazine Cartoon Used.

"A man handed me a picture from a magazine. It was a photograph of a mighty ugly man sitting just like this"—here he struck an attitude and assumed a fierce expression.

"This is just the way I always sit when addressing a witness, and I thought sure it was a picture of myself, but it turned out to be another fellow, and, Lord! he was an ugly man."

I left him still chuckling over this story, and I hoped he might become Governor, if only to show us all, from the executive office, what he must show a large circle of friends, that all is not yet "vanity"—neither "vexation of spirit"—notwithstanding the Preacher.

And I decided, after my little talk with him, that, after all, he isn't half as plain as he is painted. If his features err, they do so in the right direction. The greatest irregularity is in the abnormally short lower lip, and that only shows that he couldn't look very cross if he had to.

EDITOR WHOSE NEWSPAPER FAILED ENDS HIS LIFE

Charles Ames Cuts Throat With a Razor in His Maplewood Home.

Charles Ames, 56 years old, a newspaper editor and publisher, killed himself by cutting his throat with a razor at his home, 7319 Elm avenue, Maplewood, at 2 a. m. Wednesday.

Ames was editor and proprietor of the Maplewood Mirror, which suspended publication a month ago. Several times in the last 10 years he had attempted to conduct newspapers in Maplewood, but none of his ventures were successful.

After his last failure he was despondent and told his friends he seemed to be doomed to defeat in everything he attempted.

His wife, whose bedroom adjoined his, heard the sound of a fall and ran into her husband's room.

He lay dead on the floor with the razor clutched in his right hand.

Physicians said death was instantaneous, as the blade had severed the jugular vein, the windpipe and the carotid artery.

Ames had three children, two grown sons and a daughter 8 years old.

The program contained 15 numbers.

FRENCH QUEEN'S CROWN JEWELS HELD FOR DUTY

Two Diamonds of Marie Antoinette Are Locked in Collector's Safe.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Locked in the safe of Collector of the Port Fowler are two diamonds, weighing 42 karats each, which late in the eighteenth century ornamented the crown of Marie Antoinette, Queen of France, who lost her crown and her head in the revolution. Officials of the Treasury Department and Custom House are in dispute as to the value of the gems, some placing it at $20,000, others declaring the Princess de Montglyon is right in her declaration that their value exceeds this sum. The Princess says she was offered $80,000 for them.

Lawyers who advise the Treasury Department are in a quandary. The diamonds were taken Monday from the custody of G. M. Nelson, attorney for Princess de Montglyon, by Treasury Agents James O. Brozinski and William H. Williams, who had been on their trail for several weeks. It was then the contention of the Princess that the customs authorities had no right to exact duty, as the gems had been in this country several years.

Time Here in Question.

The special agents had received a tip that the diamonds had been brought here less than six months ago, and on that they began to trace them from the office of a Malden Lane jeweler until their search, which led to several parts of the State, ended in the office of Mr. Nelson.

"Gentlemen, you have no right to these jewels," said Mr. Nelson; "they are exempt from duty and I warn you to go slow."

Members of the legal department said the question of duty depended upon the length of time the jewels were in the United States.

Married Lion Trainer.

Princess de Montglyon comes of a noble Belgian family of vast wealth. She is the divorced wife of the Duke d'Avray and daughter of Count de Marcy de Argenntau, with the title of Montglyon, and a cousin of Prince Joseph de Chimay, who married Clara Ward of Detroit.

Princess de Montglyon became the bride of Capt. "Jack" Bonavita, the animal trainer, in the office of the American Consul at Paris, April 26, 1905.

The announcement of the marriage created a sensation on two continents. She told how she had heard that the trainer was almost certain to be killed by untamed lions, which he had determined to tame before the French public, and when she met him on the street she begged him not to enter the arena and flirt with death. He yielded to her entreaties and their friendship resulted in marriage.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

GRAND JURY TO INVESTIGATE ST. LOUIS MILK

Skimmed and Diluted Liquid Is Adulterated, Law Declares.

Skimmed and watered milk, technically adulterated, is being sent in quantities from Illinois into St. Louis, according to the finding of Government inspectors.

The result of their investigation is on its way from Washington, according to telegrams Wednesday, to District Attorney Blodgett here, who will present the facts to a Federal grand jury.

Mr. Blodgett said Wednesday that he know the investigation had been made, but that he had not yet received the papers from Washington.

Grand Jury in September.

No grand jury is now in session, and it is improbable that there will be until September.

To skim milk before selling it, as milk, or to dilute it with water, is adulteration under the law.

St. Louis dealers, suspecting that they and their customers were not getting milk up to standard in nourishing qualities, aided the Government in its investigation, which was conducted during the latter part of the winter. The results were kept secret until the Departments of Agriculture and Justice could pass on them.

The investigation originated with the Department of Agriculture. St. Louis city officials complained that large quantities of adulterated milk (in the technical sense) were being brought into St. Louis from Illipois, and inspectors and chemists were sent here.

These men worked with the co-operation of St. Louis milk dealers. The dealers thought they were being deceived, and readily gave the inspectors permission to open cans in transit and take samples therefrom.

Cans Were Marked.

The cans were marked, and the samples labeled and sent to Washington. The inspectors rode on the cars with the milk in order to do this.

The Department of Agriculture referred the reports of these inspectors to the Board of Food and Drug Inspection, and it went thence to the Department of Justice, which forwarded it to Mr. Blodgett.

Dr. H. W. Wiley, chief chemist, told a Post-Dispatch reporter in Washington that when the Illinois milk dealers found an investigation was under way, the quality of the milk improved at once.

"Skimmed milk which is sold as milk is legally adulterated," he said, "because a valuable ingredient—butter fat—has been taken from it.

"Milk which has had water added to it has been debased.

"Our inspectors found many such cases. We did not find any milk containing preservatives, such as formaldehyde or borax."

BATH IN LINER FATALLY SCALDS GEN. WHITTIER

New York Man's Death on the Mauretania Not Due to Heart Disease.

Copyright, 1908, by the Press Pub. Co. (New York World.)

LONDON, May 20.—The facts concerning the death of Brigadier-General Charles A. Whittier of New York, on board the Mauretania last Thursday, were learned when the vessel reached Queenstown today. He did not die of heart disease, as the original wireless report stated, but was scalded and drowned in a bath tub.

Gen. Whittier went to take a bath, and while in the tub it is supposed, was attacked by a fit. In his paroxysms he turned the hot water tap with his hand, and the tub was soon flooded with almost boiling water.

The discovery of his tragic fate was made within a short time. His body was removed from the bath, and the official report recited that he had succumbed to an attack of heart disease. The truth was known, however, to most of the first cabin passengers.

The body was embalmed. It was taken ashore at Queenstown, and will be sent to New York on a ship sailing tomorrow.

Gen. Whittier, whose home was at 247 Fifth Avenue, sailed from New York of the Mauretania last Wednesday. He was to attend to some business matters in London and Paris and visit his daughter, the Princess Belozisky of St. Petersburg.

Another daughter, Pauline Whittier, married Ernest Iselin four years ago. His wife died in 1906.

WOMAN IS HELD FOR DEATH OF FORMER SINGER

Mrs. Michalski Under Arrest in Mrs. Katherine Sears Case.

Mrs. Emilie Michalski of 2009 Victor street was held responsible Wednesday by a Coroner's jury for the death of Mrs. Katherine Sears, bride of Harold J. Sears, a young attorney.

Mrs. Sears was formerly Miss Katherine Conroy, choir singer and vaudeville actress. Her first husband was William H. Dowdall. She was 23 years old.

The woman died at 1 a. m. Monday at the home of Mrs. Pauline Schaeffer, 1837 Rutget street, where she and her husband boarded. She was buried Tuesday afternoon from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Conroy, 3526 Laclede avenue, in Calvary Cemetery.

The verdict at the inquest was due to the testimony of Dr. C. VanderBeck and Dr. J. B. Prichard, who were called in when Mrs. Sears was near death. They said they found evidence that an operation had been performed on her. They signed the death certificate, giving the cause as blood poisoning.

LESS POLITICS AND MORE CITIZENSHIP.

Mr. George J. Tansey's remarks to a body of merchants the other evening contained some truths worth digesting. Politics is not good for the merchant, he observed, but every merchant ought to have a live interest in good municipal government.

That is to say, politics in the narrow sense of partisan intriguery is of no benefit to the business man compared to a well-ordered administration of city affairs. Rather than involve himself in the intricacies of party machinations he is wise to stand upon the proposition that the city must be governed rightly, to reserve his independent influence for decision of the issue of good government, and to devote his energies to that end. Active citizenship is better than active "politics."

Too frequently when the business man or financier becomes a "politician" he is out for privilege. In looking out for Number One or representing the interests, and in the means he employs to carry a purpose at any cost to the public good, he discounts the methods of the practical or professional politician. The "business man in politics" has no very agreeable connotation.

But good government is good business. A well-administered city by that fact itself draws industry, investment and trade; it builds up population, wealth, credit and power. The reputation of his city for clean, intelligent municipal rule should be an asset somewhat akin to good will in the business of every merchant, manufacturer, banker and other commercial factor in the metropolis.

By standing together squarely on the proposition, the business men of a city can guarantee first-class municipal rule, and they should do so as a basis of commercial security and from considerations of good business, independently of higher principles.

A "RUNNING" INJUNCTION.

Right is right, law is law, and a meritorious presentation in court undoubtedly deserves an immediate temporary injunction in a proper case. To be sure, if an injunction is proper it is proper the moment it is asked for, and its force ought to be operative instanter. The speed of the remedy is what commends it especially to equity.

But an injunction is not operative per se. It has to be served first; wherefore the service frequently is pretty much the gist of the business. Without criticism of the Federal officials, but only admiration, and without reflection one way or another upon the merits of the case, every true lover of sport will applaud the lightning facility with which a writ of this character was sued out and served from the Federal Building in St. Louis the other day.

It was applied for, signed and sealed by the Court with laudable promptitude, bonds were fixed—and then the fun began; a kind of relay race.

The English classics used to treat of constables as the speediest members of the human family. The modern process server would leave them at the post. Seizing the writ, hot and fresh from the Court, the individual in this case ran out of the Federal Building, jumped into a waiting auto, violated the speed limit to Eighteenth street, where a posted ally handed him a suitcase and a railway ticket, whizzed to Union Station and caught an outgoing Frisco train by running after it. A split-second watch could have hardly measured the whole proceedings.

Injunctions are said by the law to "run." Hereafter we recommend the verb "scoot."

THE LINCOLN MEMORIAL.

The contemplated Lincoln memorial at the national capital has the earmarks of American enthusiasm at the expense of art. The bill introduced therefor in Congress calls for a $5,000,000 appropriation and looks to the condemnation of several city blocks.

By a patient and deliberate expenditure of good taste a greater result here may be achieved than by vast outlays of wealth. America's memorial "art," so-called, has heretofore been almost as conspicuous for its want of artistic character as for its display of lavishness. Memorial architecture specialized and developed to a high perfection in Europe offers an effective contrast of simplicity, and most of it will endure for its beauty centuries after our costly piles shall have ceased to hold significance.

Let us hope that the nation will pause long before it perpetrates a gross incongruity in the case of Lincoln, the keynote of whose character and power and deeds was a great simplicity. That idea ought not to be effaced by an awesome pretentiousness of marble in mere costly and awkward piles.

Word comes from Washington that the Republican leaders in the House, through a majority of the Committee on Ways and Means, have served final notice of "no tariff revision at this session." This solemn announcement is greeted with smiles as a familiar old friend. It disappoints nobody, for nobody had the temerity to hope for anything different.

Discretion is not the better part of valor in a Light Trust when it comes to making discretionary rates.

THE LIGHT TRUST AROUSED TO DEFENSE.

Betting never decided an issue, and an offer to bet is no answer to an argument. Often, however, it is an indication that the other side of an issue has been presented unanswerably.

The Light Trust's offer of $100 reward for a showing that it had violated its November "pledge" to sell current at uniform rates came in direct response to the Post-Dispatch's revelations of the trust's policy of discrimination, and was and is a tribute to the force of the facts shown.

The Post-Dispatch has conclusively demonstrated and will continue to demonstrate that the Union Electric Light and Power Co.'s rate-making has been arbitrary and governed generally by considerations of what the traffic would bear. Within the limits of a sliding-scale schedule which is Greek to the average consumer—who is the small consumer—the trust imposes and collects what rates it pleases. That it will continue to do so until restrained by the force of law and government or by the influence of competition no sane resident of St. Louis can doubt.

That it has been aroused to the necessity of active self-defense and undertakes to plead its case is the most encouraging sign which the monopolistic situation has disclosed to the people of St. Louis in many a day. The trust is stirred to take account of a public opinion; it recognizes the people as party to the issue. Having made so much headway, the fight for relief will go on. The movement has distinctly acquired momentum.

Now that the Light Trust wakes up to its situation this should be the signal to awake the St. Louis public to a fuller perception of its own essential advantage and its opportunities for relief. A thorough realization that they have monopoly at their mercy is all that the people of this city need to compel the reasonable and uniform rates that a score of other cities have successfully dictated to similar public-service corporations.

There is no class of monopoly which so well realizes the people's power as in general the lighting monopoly in cities. The Light Trust of St. Louis must be credited with intelligence enough to know what the people have been slow to perceive—that the people are not at its mercy, but that it is essentially subject to their power, which when lawfully exerted will easily achieve proper regulation and control.

The Light Trust proves this by its advertisements, and it hastens the day of its own regulation by every challenge that it offers to public intelligence and every wager that it lays against the truth.

CLEAN FLOORS FOR STREET CARS.

General Manager McCulloch is credited with a purpose to provide St. Louis with clean street cars and to that end is experimenting with hard composition floors which can be flushed out and kept comparatively free of dirt and disease germs.

This is a sanitary plan of striking importance in the light of demonstrations of what street-car filth contains. Clean interiors, especially in winter, when windows are closed, would mean much to public health.

As a means of disease communication the dirty car is probably not exceeded by any agency. Eventually the sanitary car must come, and if the United Railways can produce it, or a near approach to it, presently, it will be a great feather in its cap and in that of its general manager. St. Louis has the greatest trolley system in this country and it should be first in all improvements.

CHEERLESS FUTURE FOR BACHELORS.

Dr. Charles Proteus Steinmetz, scientist and dreamer, sees into the future in a way that makes Edward Bellamy and H. G. Wells look like hasbeens by comparison; but he is chiefly interesting for the awful finish that he foresees for the bachelor.

In the great day to come, he prophesies, all married men will move out into the beautiful country with their families, and cities will be nothing but a collection of office buildings, factories and bachelor apartments.

Could anything more cheerful on the one hand and cheerless on the other be imagined? Yet every one must admit that the apportionment is fair, the married men getting no more than they deserve, and the bachelors' punishment especially fitting their crime.

It is a cold and seemingly cruel justice, but justice nevertheless, that bachelors by their selfish course deliberately forego all right even to the sight of women and children, and consequently to civilization. In fact they are undesirable from nearly every point of view, and a coolly scientific future is extremely likely either to isolate them for purely industrial use or exterminate them altogether.

There will be no appropriation for new mail lines to South American ports, and some of our mails thereto will continue to go by way of Europe. Jeffersonian aims and prophesies seem to be increasingly ignored these days, even if they are remembered by our statesmen—which is somewhat doubtful.

Gov. Francis' conversion to Bryanism has always been rather diverting than convincing—but almost any kind of conversion these days may be good enough to get the loaves and fishes.

The advance guard arrving at the Jefferson City convention seemed to be the Old Guard. Let us hope that the order will be promptly reversed and the Old Guard relegated far to the rear.

Mr. Taft must feel highly complimented by the fears expressed in many orthodox Republican circles that, with most of the delegates to the Republican national convention instructed for him, there may nevertheless be a stampede for Roosevelt.

Let us hope that the probe will sink deep enough into the Board of Pernicious Inactivity to go through some of those asphalt and bitulithic paving deals.

If Mrs. Gunness is fleeing to Europe, probably Russia is her destination, and she ought to find the climate to her liking.

It was no trouble for the Cowherd Business Men's Club to pay its own way to Jefferson City.

The hatpin is a potent big stick, seeing how a St. Louis girl routed two burglars with it.

The venerable Senator Tom Platt has a very sweet and amiable disposition by all indications.

Opponents of deep water will please note that the river stage at St. Louis is 23.

If they take the lid off the Snell case they will have to close the doors.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

American Ladies and Others.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

There are women in this ountry who have sunk so low that they cannot hope to ever marry an American gentleman. Such as they are ready to marry an intelligent (or otherwise) Japanese, as a matter of fact, they would marry anybody in the shape of man, providing he could support them. I am pleased to say that our American ladies seldom marry anything but American gentlemen, and why should they? J. W. B.

Automobile Speeding.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Too much can hardly be said against any person who attempts to run an automobile over our public thoroughfares at a speed prohibited by law. There is no difference whether one is killed by a leaden bullet or an automobile. The person who does either leaves himself answerable to the law and should be tried for murder. Very heavy fines should be imposed for fast speeding on our streets, and in addition the guilty party should be imprisoned. I sincerely trust that something will be done to stop dangerous speeding of automobiles, so as to protect the public from the same. J. A. M.

The Fair Grounds Park.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It is to be hoped that the North St. Louis people will make every possible effort towards having the beautiful old Fair Grounds converted into a park. It is an ideal place, with its fine trees and shrubbery of so many years' growth, which would make it a very easy matter to use it for that purpose. It would indeed be a pity to destroy such a place when we are so much in need of a park in this section. I should think it would be appreciated very much. And the North End people should not allow such a beautiful spot to be demolished.

Alien Cheap Labor

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I have read the letter of the Belleville citizen under the title, "Alien Laborers." I cannot agree with him that the foreigners want to work cheap and for this reason they are preferred by the manufacturers. The foreigners are preferred because they work steadily and do not like to have good times and, second, they like to honestly work. But for the information of the Belleville citizen why the foreigner is forced to work cheap, I quote him below some reasons: First, a foreigner is forced to work cheap because he is not able to talk English; second, because three-quarters of them very often have not a cent in their pocket when they land in this country. GERVERUS.

The Honorable Half-Breed.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I think "S. G." shows a very narrow mind and also profound ignorance of Japanese character when he says a child would be ashamed of a Japanese father, for the first thing a Japanese child is taught is to honor his parents next to his country. No matter if he has an American mother, if she loves her husband, as of course she does, she is willing for her child to love the father's country as well as her own. No well-born Japanese considers any woman, of whatever nationality, is lowering herself by marrying him, as he believes his people and country the equal of any and superior to many. As for it being displeasing to the Almighty, we have so far seen no evidence of his displeasure. FAIR PLAY.

A Wise Girl.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Is there anything lacking in a young lady when she does not care to be a society girl? I love to enjoy life and have a good time, but to devote my whole time to society and just enjoying life seems to me to be such an empty, artificial life. My parents think I am queer because I am so indifferent about it, and I hate to displease them. There is a rich young gentleman who has been very lovely to me of late (my parents are very much in favor of him), but he has had too much luxury and ease wis whole life, and I admire a man starting at the bottom of the ladder, who is not afraid to work and who works for the people. I hope I am not different from all girls, and I do not always want to be called

St. Louis Born Street Cleaners.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I fully agree with your correspondent, C. H., that not many St. Louis-born citizens are "on street cleaning jobs." This is simply because very few of these same citizens seek such employment. They are never discriminated against on account of their nativity. Street cleaners do not get "about $2 per day," as C. H. states. They earn $1.50 every working day, and lose at least one day every week on account of bad weather and two paydays each month. They thus earn $7.50 a week, but are compelled to spend at least $2 a month for carfare, leaving them, according to C. H.'s mathematics, about $12 a month. How they can save a fortune in a few years it is hard to figure.

Slaves of the Clock.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It is now 12:15 o'clock Saturday afternoon. I have just returned from City Hall. I went to the Building Commissioner's office to secure a permit to build a porch on my house, 4335 Page boulevard. I arrived at the office at 11:50 a. m., stated my business and was given a blank to be filled out at another office (No. 325). I was told by the clerk who gave me the blank to have filled out at another department to return and they would fix me up. I had the blank properly filled out and returned to room No. 305, and, seeing two clerks not doing anything, I asked to be waited on. I was informed I was too late, as it was after 12 o'clock. It was just one minute after 12. I would like to ask through the Post-Dispatch if a taxpayer and citizen has no rights that a city employe is bound to respect? I am also constrained to ask in this connection if this same clerk who is so anxious to quit at noon Saturdays is as anxious to start to work on time Monday morning?

CONSCIENTIOUS CARRIE.

Conscientious Carrie always tried to do her best;
Never lost her temper—she was different from the rest;
Carrie was a "central," with a voice of sweetest tone,
And that is why Miss Carrie has a cottage of her own.
—Portland Oregonian.

When Mrs. Carrie she became she didn't quite forget;
She took her low, sweet voice along, and has it even yet.
But if hubby's just a little slow to answer to her call
She can jar him with a voice that cracks the paper on the wall.
—Chicago Tribune.

Conscientious Carrie we are glad to learn is caged;
We speak for that large army she so frequently enraged.
When in a voice of sweetest tone she murmured "Line's engaged."
Or "Busy now," "What number, please?" what time she persiflaged.
—Boston Traveler.

Conscientious Carrie is a hello girl no more,
But all the same the stork has called, as others did before;
And almost any day you may see Carrie and her small
Descendants riding in the park in Carrie's carry-all.

HARDLY.

Having rinsed his throat out, the orator brandished his arms at the convention and resumed:

"He is a man whose name is a household word from Maine to California—a man qualified for the presidency by every natural endowment and an experience in public affairs which is perhaps without a parallel in our public life—a big man, a good man, a self-made man"—

"Hold on!" shouted a delegate in the Illinois delegation, springing to the seat of his chair. "I thought you were nominating Taft."

"I am."

"Do you call him a self-made man?"

A peal of laughter swept the convention, and the orator, very red in the face and mopping his brow, waited an opportunity to resume.

Anyway, the ladies get a seat in the summer cars if anybody does.

SOCRATES ON REFORM.

SOCRATES: This morning I met Rooseveltius the Reformer starting out upon one of his walks.

GLAUCON: And you joined him?

SOCRATES: By request.

POLEMARCHUS: Ah, and what did you talk of?

SOCRATES: He asked my advice.

THRASYMACHUS: On what matter, Socrates?

SOCRATES: Reform. He said, "Ought I to go right ahead, or to let up, Socrates?" "You should go right ahead," I answered. "But I have paralyzed business," he protested. "Yes," I agreed, "and that shows what kind of business we have been doing."

GLAUCON: I'll warrant he did not savey that.

SOCRATES: No, he did not. He stopped in the road, where there was no one to hear. "What do you mean, Socrates?" he asked. "Simply this," I explained: "If business were honest, reform could not hurt it, Rooseveltius." "No, it could not," he said. "If we had not grown prosperous upon policies other than honesty, the insistence upon honesty as the paramount policy could not have hurt anyone." "Certainly not," he assented. "All right, Rooseveltius," I continued, "what then must be our inference from the fact that a panic resulted from your campaign against dishonesty?" "That there was something very rotten in Denmark," he replied.

GLAUCON: But how could you insist upon such a sweeping conclusion, Socrates? A great deal of innocent business suffered by the policies of Rooseveltius.

SOCRATES: How innocent, Glaucon?

GLAUCON: It was not engaged in dishonest traffic.

SOCRATES: Ah, I grant you that! But we were all getting some of the pirates' booty. We could not be half honest and half dishonest, and still claim to be honest. In fact, we all dissembled. We made no distinction between earned and stolen dollars, so long as they came in.

GLAUCON: No, we did not. You have me there, Socrates.

THRASYMACHUS: What did Rooseveltius finally do?

SOCRATES: He said he would take my advice. He asked me if I didn't think the country would soon be rich enough to afford absolute honesty, and I told him I did not think so. "Rooseveltius," I said, "if we can't afford reform now, we never shall be able to stand it." "Why not?" he asked. "The country grows richer all the time." "But, Rooseveltius," I said, "in a short time Europe will have married most of our money, and then we shall have to be very dishonest to make ends meet at all."

A. B.—Totem is a rude figure of some object, generally of an animal used by the North American Indians as the symbol of a tribe, or sometimes of a particular band, to which they belong. The same custom prevails in Northern Asia, Australia, Oceanica, etc., as formerly in Europe.

OTHA.—Tip (fippenny bit or fipni bit—corruption of five penny bit) is a Spanish half real or one-sixteenth of a dollar. At one time this coin passed for 6¼ cents in the United States and was called in New England fourpence, in New York sixpence, in Pennsylvania and Virginia a fip, in Louisiana a picayune.

L. S. P.—Sulphur and molasses: Put two teaspoons sulphur in bottom of a glass. Pour on it six teaspoons molasses. Stir well. Take teaspoon before breakfast and one just before going to bed, three days; then omit three days. Repeat and omit three days until you have taken the preparation nine days.

W. L.—To conceal a birthmark, moisten it with water, powder it white and then apply a layer of flexible collodion, afterwards using flesh-colored powder over the whole face. A harmless paint used for the same purpose consists of these ingredients: Wood charcoal, ½ dram; carmine, ½ dram; chalk, 8 drams; glycerin, 1½ drams; flexible collodion, 4 drams; rectified spirits, 1 dram.

SMALL.—Indians do not have beards. An old Indian says: "I do not think I ever saw an Indian with a beard." Tattooing killed the beard of the cannibal, and dermatologists have been trying to discover something like the inks used by the fishbone artists of the tropical islands to sell as a harmless yet effective depilatory to civilized and Christian beauties. Male children of a white man and an Indian wife have fine mustaches and often have beards.

PAT.—Orchestra in the space between the stage and the audience. There are four other definitions: 1. A band of instrumental musicians performing in a theater, concert hall or other place of amusement. 2. A band suitable for the performance of symphonies, overtures, etc., as well as for the accompaniment of operas, oratorios, cantatas, masses and the like, or of local and instrumental solos. 3. A band composed, for the largest part, of players of the various viol instruments, many of each kind, together with a proper complement of wind instruments of wood and brass. 4. The instruments employed by a full band, collectively.

L. X. S.—In washing silk avoid four things—rubbing, wringing, heat and soap. Use lukewarm water and if silk is much soiled make lather with good white soap, but never rub soap directly on the cloth. If only slightly soiled, bran water is preferable to soap. Swish the article round and round, but do not rub. When clean, rinse in water to which one tablespoonful vinegar has been added for each quart water. Place between dry cloths and squeeze out as much moisture as possible, but do not wring. Iron at once, between paper, with a medium heated iron. Sponging with coffee will remove greasy appearance that especially affects creases in silks. A good renovating fluid for black silks is a little rock of ammonia and a lump of common soda dissolved in half pint boiling water. Sponge and iron between paper or under black cloth.

BLIGHTED LOVE AT SIXTY

A Little Whimsical, Cynical Satire From a Post-Dispatch Writer

BY NIXOLA GREELEY-SMITH.

NIXOLA GREELEY SMITH

MRS. SARAH A. THOMPSON, a grandmother of 60, is suing a middle-aged man for $10,000, alleging breach of promise. Already inconsiderate men laughed at the idea that the love which springs up in a sexagenarian heart is of a quality to be blighted. This is, in my opinion, unfair, for the older a woman grows the more she believes, indeed the more she has to believe.

A man doesn't care whether a young and pretty woman believes in him or not, provided she is graciously willing to love him. But as a woman must be to him either an idol or a swinger of incense, and he generally allows her age to determine which, the elderly siren has generally to make up in faith what she lacks in freshness.

Also, we discover as we grow older and stouter that it is much more comfortable to believe in men than not. And so we wax in faith and fat with every year.

It is really much easier for a gay deceiver to beguile a girl of 60 than a girl of 16, for the former has acquired the habit of being beguiled. I know very few American young women who do not know thoroughly the ways and wiles of man—none who call justly for either sympathy or damages in a breach of promise suit. But I can recall several old ladies so credulously eager for man's wooing that the proverbial meanness of taking pennies from a blind man is by comparison with the stealing of their confiding hearts an act of fine philanthropy.

Perhaps a hundred years or so ago woman had to learn gradually a judicious circumspection in regard to masculine vows. But today cynicism and sophistication are so generally the heritage of even our youngest that a woman finds herself believing much more of man's constancy at 30 than she did at 15. Really, the desperate villains in our midst should confine their deceptions to us of the younger generation. And we, the hunted, should, if necessary, stalk him away from the old ladies who know not whereof he speaks.

LETTERS FROM THE LONELIES.

Try to Solve the Problem Which These Folk Present to You.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I am very interested in the letters of the "Lonelies" and "Sensibles" to your paper, and I just wonder that there are so many who feel about like I feel, and that they never meet. Sad, but true. I am disappointed and had given it up, trying to find a sensible girl, but now I hope once more.

G. N.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Men do not care for sensible young women. If they did, more would be married, and fewer giddy girls would be parties in divorce suits.

With due respect to the church, it is not the place to find social friends. Married men and grandfathers compose the average male attendants at any church. A LAWYER'S SISTER.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I would like to say to "A Young Man," who has found his friends in the Sunday school and church, that of course he would easily get acquainted there (and anywhere else for that matter). It is ten times easier for a young man to meet people than it is for a young lady, because the man is supposed to make the advances, and he usually does. But the young lady has to wait for someone to introduce her to the young men, and it is very seldom that the young ladies of the church will do it. Most of them are afraid of being "cut out" by the newcomer.

I moved to St. Louis about six months ago, and the first thing I did was to go to Sunday school. I am in a class of young ladies, none of whom has so much as come to see me, let alone introducing me to their gentleman friends. DITTO.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I have been in the city over ten years and find it very hard to get acquainted with either sex. I work in a private family as cook, and not that I can't do other work, but because I prefer that kind of work to any other. In other words, though a girl like me has the poorest chance to get acquainted with the sensible men of St. Louis, they are too stuck up to be entertained in the kitchen. That is the only place a girl like myself has, and I am sure it isn't her fault. Why men shirk such girls I don't know. Those men that call themselves sensibles, and wish to get acquainted with the sensible girls, will find the average part of them working in kitchens. The Lonely Social Club may be consolation to some of them, but not for me. I attended one of their meetings, and there wasn't one that spoke to me. OLD MAID.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Nobody has ever thought until the Post-Dispatch took it up, of the hundreds and hundreds of people of all ages, in all large cities, without opportunities to meet any of the opposite sex socially. As long as there is so much false modesty in that respect, it is going to be a difficult problem to solve, and as long as the ones who might help take so little interest. The Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. could bring all their members together, and have entertainments to pair them off, occasionally, for one evening at least, and every church could do the same if they would. There is no better way for young people to get acquainted than at a first-class dancing school, where strict etiquette is taught and observed. All social organizations are good as far as they go, but they reach comparatively few, and the getting acquainted of the single members is left mostly to chance.

A MIDDLE-AGE LONELY.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It has been with much interest that I have read the letter written by "Too Sensible" and the many answers to it. I was surprised to see so many answers from young men, for I had come to the conclusion that there were no more sensible young men in the world. I have often wished that I had lived in my mother's time, for I know what few young men I have met have not been anything like those that my mother has told me off. When I speak of a sensible young man I do not mean a mollycoddle, for if there is anything that is disgusting it is such a person. I believe in lots of good, wholesome fun, and I know there is not a boy that enjoys a ball game any more than I do, and all other outdoor sports. I have met very few young men compared to the average girl. I work in an office as bookkeeper, but in a business that I come in contact with very few young men. As far as churches are concerned, I have gone to one church ever since I can remember, but the boys of that church can be counted on the fingers of one hand, so where is the chance there for a girl?

EAST ST. LOUIS.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I was sitting in Lafayette Park one Sunday morning in an endeavor to kill time, and was watching the many young people going to the Lafayette Park Methodist Sunday School, when I summed up courage enough to make up my mind to go in and see what was doing. Having never been inside of a Sunday school since I was a little boy, you can imagine my feelings, but I must say that if I ever was welcomed any place in my life it never equaled the welcome I received when I went in there and let it be known that I was a stranger.

You lonelies, one and all, come over to the Lafayette Park Methodist M. E. Sunday School, join the Ariel class, composed of young ladies and young gentlemen, and if your loneliness don't disappear you are a hard case indeed. Let us welcome you among us. We will never know that you were lonely unless you tell us, and an opportunity to secure friends without the Lonely Club idea (from which every sensible girl will shrink) is presented in no other way.

Disease Breeds in Summer Homes

Before taking your family to the country and placing them in a house that has remained empty during the winter it is of the greatest importance that you first thoroughly clean and scrub it from "cellar to garret" and destroy all disease germs which may have accumulated during its vacant period.

The only way to accomplish this and to keep summer sickness away is to use a strong germicide systematically everywhere. Add it to all scrubbing and cleaning water, pour it into the sinks, and toilets, sprinkle it about the plumbing and cellar and all dark or damp corners where germs are liable to habitate.

For this work the best and safest germicide is CN Disinfectant, a non-poisonous coal tar preparation which is both effective and economical.

THE ROMANCE OF LOVE-MAKING

A Series of True Stories From the Lives of the World's Greatest Men.

BY THORNTON HALL.

(Copyrighted 1908 by the Press Publishing Co., N. Y. World.)

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

The earlier installments described the romantic and unusual beginnings of famous men's love affairs (the love stories of Washington, Franklin, Garibaldi, Ruskin, etc.); the history and philosophy of kissing and certain strange ways whereby wives have been wooed and won. Historic love letters from the theme of one chapter, and celebrated fictional proposals of marriage are cited in another.

CHAPTER VII.

How the Ladies Propose—In Fiction.

FORTUNATELY ladies when they take their courage in both hands and "pop the question" usually keep their passion better in hand than did Mrs. Archbold in "Hard Cash," when she offered herself to Alfred Hardy in the madhouse.

"Alfred," she said, resting one hand on his shoulder, "my heart burns for you, bleeds for you, yearns for you, sickens for you, dies for you."

"Oh, hush! hush! Mrs. Archbold," said Alfred. "You are saying things you will blush for the next moment."

"I blush now, but cannot hush; I have gone too far. And your happiness as well as mine is at stake. * * * I worship the ground you walk on, my sweet, sweet boy. * * * Give me a chance to make you mine forever. Say you the word, dearest, and I will bribe the servants, get the keys and sacrifice my profession forever to give you liberty, and all I ask is a little, little of your heart in return."

But Alfred's affections were already engaged; all Mrs. Archbold's impassioned pleading was in vain, and in her rage and disappointment she vowed that she would drive him to madness and let him see what a scorned and insulted woman could do.

In Wendell Holmes' "Elsie Venner" is a touching account of Elsie's fruitless revelation of her love:

"I have no friend," Elsie said all at once. "Nothing loves me but one old woman. I cannot love anybody. They tell me there is something in my eyes that draws people to me and makes them faint. Look into them, will you?" She turned her face toward him. It was very pale, and the diamond eyes were glittering with a film such as beneath other lids would have rounded a tear.

"Beautiful eyes, Elsie," he said. "Sometimes very piercing, but soft now, and looking as if there was something beneath them that friendship might draw out. I am your friend, Elsie. Tell me what I can do to render your life happier."

"Love me," said Elsie Venner.

Alas, poor Elsie! Bernard had no love, such as she craved, to give her. To her it was but a mockery to be loved as a "friend" or "a suffering sister," and it is little wonder, perhaps, that she drooped under the disappointment and died.

And how charming is the maiden delicacy of the Puritan maiden's answer to John Alden when, stifling his own love, he pleaded the cause of his friend:

"So the maidens went on, and little divined or imagined what was at work in his heart that made him so awkward and speechless. 'Let us, then, be what we are, and speak what we think and in all things keep ourselves loyal to truth, and the sacred profession of friendship. It is no secret I tell you, nor am I ashamed to declare it; I have liked to be with you, to see you, to speak with you always. So I was hurt at your words and a little affronted to hear you urge me to marry your friend, though he were the Capt. Miles Standish, for I must tell you the truth: Much more to me is your friendship than all the love he could give, were he twice the hero you think him.'"

The male lover finds in fiction a much wider range of models for his guidance. If he is poetic and highly sentimental he might with little difficulty reproduce the following scene, pictured in a recent novel: "Her eyes feast themselves upon his form, beaming their love and joy. He lifts his head and looks at her, gazing as if he could never gaze his fill at that sweet face. With a gesture of passionate love he draws the little head to his shoulder, where it nestles softly; and as a pair of soft arms steal round his neck he finds voice to whisper at last, 'My own darling, will you love me?' Her answer is a long, gentle kiss."

Should his leaning be toward the florid style of declaration he might copy the hero of a recent story, who thus pours out his soul to the lady of his heart: "You ask me if I really love you? Why, my darling, does not love cry out to you in every glance of my eyes, in every tremor of my voice? I have not known a moment since first we met when my love for you has not absorbed my very soul. To be near you is heaven; not to see you is the greatest misery my life has known. I think of you, dream of you, live for you; your glance transports me to heaven; your touch thrills me; your voice is sweeter than any earthly music. Tell me, darling, that you love me—ever so little—and I shall count myself the happiest man on earth."

The lover who feels himself unable to soar to such heights of eloquence may take as his model the hero of "Molly Bawn." "Darling," says Mr. Luttrell, "Why are you so cruel to me since you must care for me, be it ever such a little? To think otherwise would— But I will not think of it, Molly, Nay, you will marry me?"

"You must have known that I loved you from the first night," protested the Little Minister to Babbie. "No you only amused me," she said, like one determined to stint nothing of the truth. "Even at the well I laughed at your vows." This wounded Gaven afresh, wretched as her story had made him, and he said tragically, "You have never cared for me at all." "Oh, always, always," she answered, "since I knew what love was; and it was you who taught me." Even in his misery he held his head high with pride. At least she did love him.

"Lucy, did you never dream of meeting me?" asked Richard Feverel of Lucy Desborough. "Oh, Richard, yes; for I remembered you." "Lucy, and did you pray that we might meet "I did." "My own! my own forever! "And you are mine!" "Lucy! my bride, my life!" * * * The nightjar spins his dark monotony on the branch of the pine. The soft beam travels round them and listens to their hearts. Their lips are locked. Lovers who cannot make up their mind to a straightforward proposal should be warned by Hiram Hey's experience in Halliwell Sutcliffe's "Shameless Wayne." "I've been thinking of things Martha," said Hiram, "sin' I saw thee look so bonnie—like this morn." "What sort o' things!" she asked demurely, sweeping the table free of crumbs. "Well what's wrong with a young 'un like the maister is right enough for a seasoned chap like me," continued Hiram smiling with wintry foolishness. "I'm rather backward in coming forrad, tha sees, but it came ower me t' other day that I mud varry weel look around and about me; and if I could find a wench 'at war all I looked for i' a wench"—"A, what then, Himar?" He paused and shuffled his feet. "Why, there's niver no telling, niver no telling at all," he said with an air of deep wisdom.

In vain did Martha exercise her arts to draw Hiram beyond this non-committal stage, until at last she became angry. "Well, best gotten owt to say!" at last she demanded, facing him abruptly, 'Say? Well, now, I'm backward i' coming forrad, as I telled thee; but th' art as snod-set-up a wench as iver"— T'"hanks for now good-day, Hiram. Th'are back'ard i' most things, I'm thinking," said Martha, flouncing out into the yard.

Hiram should have taken a lesson from that other buculio who, in a recent novel, puts his fate thus unromantically but boldly to the test "When Dick, leaning against a pigsty, had suddenly felt himself compelled—he knew not why—to abruptly interrupt a discussion on the culture of tomatoes with the utterly inconsequent inquiry, 'Daisy will you be my wife?' Daisy keeping her eyes steadily fixed the while on an elderly porker, simply answered 'Yes, Dick,'" And therein lies the whole secret of an effective proposal—a straightforward simple question, and an equally honest, direct answer.

"But," said the "Gentleman of France," the hero of Mr. Stanley Weyman's fascinating novel, to the lady whom he had loved so long, and now saw in all the splendor of court dress. "I do not see here the lady to whom I came to address myself, and whom I have seen in far other garb than yours, wet and weary and dishevelled, in danger and in flight. Her I have served and loved, and for her I have lived. I have had no thought that has not been hers, nor care save for her. I and all that I have are hers, and I came to lay them at her feet. But I do not see her here."

"No, sir?" she answered in a whisper, her face averted. "No, mademoiselle." With a sudden brightness and quickness which set my heart beating she turned and looked at me. "Indeed," she said, "I am very sorry for that. It is a pity your love should be given elsewhere, M. de Marsac—since it is the King's will that you should marry me." "Ah, mademoiselle!" I cried, kneeling before her, for she had come round to the table and stood beside me—"But you?" "It is my will, too, sir," she answered, smiling through her tears.

The continuation of this chapter on proposals will be found in tomorrow's Post-Dispatch.

How He Made Good.

"Do you remember Bluffwood, the chap who boasted that it would not be long before he would be scorching in a big machine? Well, he made good."

"Ah, indeed! Then I suppose he is racing around the country in a big French car?"

"Not quite, but he's a-scorching in a big machine every day. Got a job running a patent ironer in a steam laundry."—Chicago News.

Smile of Fat Man Sadder Than Tears

Beneath a Show of Joy Lies the Gloomy Vision of the Grim Reaper.

We have learned to know that the adage "Laugh and grow fat" is just as untrue as the early-to-bed and early-to-rise fib. It does not usually make a man healthy, wealthy and wise, at least not in our day.

And so we are beginning to realize that fat is a very dangerous disease and not a state of giggling happiness.

Many fat people haw-haw in public, and wear their thumbs in their vest arm-pits just as a safety valve to their misery, and to make us believe that their smiles are genuine.

Some are really jolly, but not because they are fat. To most of the jolly ones as well as to the others, every coming and going of their breath is a puff of misery, and their smiles are sadder than the tears of childhood.

Most fat people will not acknowledge it, but deep down in their hearts they know this is true. They know that smiles avail not, and that the same heart which tries to be happy, that same moment is being clutched by death-fat, slowly, but surely, to be finally smothered and made silent forever. Some do not know what is going to happen, but they feel that something might. They may well be apprehensive.

Rengo is a reducer of fat and a cure of fat disease is a Godsend to every fat man and woman in the world. It is the new method, the only safe method. Rengo reduces you, while at the same time making you feel better and stronger.

There is nothing "just as good" as Rengo. For sale by all druggists at $1.00 per full sized box, or by mail, prepaid, by The Rengo Co., 3163 Rengo Bldg., Detroit, Mich. The company will gladly send you a trial package free by mail, if you write them direct to Detroit; no free packages at drug stores.

For sale and recommended in St. Louis by Johnson Bros., Broadway and Franklin; Raboteau & Co., Broadway and Locust; Judge & Dolph, 513 Olive st., druggists.

The Perfect Complexion

Can It be Obtained If Nature Has Not Bestowed It?

Every month the magazines published for women devote page after page to articles on Beauty Culture, telling how to improve the face and figure.

The manufacturers of face creams, lotions and cosmetics spend hundreds of thousands of dollars telling woman how she can beautify herself. It would take a hundred papers as big as today's Post-Dispatch to print even a part of all of these "Beauty Talks," but probably the most sensible of the many formulas and receipts given is a simple wash that can easily be prepared by any woman in her own kitchen. The following are the directions for making:

Obtain at your drug store, Rose Water, two ounces; Cologne Spirits, one ounce; Eppotone (skin food) four ounces. Put the Eppotone in a pint of hot water (not boiling), and after dissolved, strain and let cool. Then add the Rose Water and the Cologne Spirits.

It is claimed for this home-made complexion wash that it will tone up the skin, making it soft and smooth and bring back the bloom of youth to even the most faded complexion. * * *

From the New York Mail.

Just as a matter of court etiquette, it may be stated here that it is not proper for a jury to flip a coin to decide a verdict, but that it is not improper for a district attorney to shake dice to determine who shall pay for liquid refreshments.

WHEN THE MAN PROPOSES.

No Honorable Girl Ever Tells on Him If She Has to Say No, Says This Writer.

BY MYRA HEWES.

ALL is fair in love and war and a girl has carte blanche up to the proposing time. She can blow hot or blow cold. She can make Rome howl, but there is a line to be drawn just as in any other business.

The girl who gets the proposals of marriage is not only the girl who conceals all her designs matrimonially, but who really has a heart.

A girl can flirt—I suppose she can—I never saw a girl who would not flirt!

But the girl who would in cold blood flirt with a fellow or lead him to propose for the purpose of throwing him over cannot possess the ingredients that would command any kind of a man's deep affection. She is without conscience, she is without sympathy, and, above all, she is without honor. Not many girls, however, would do that.

Certainly no girl would betray a proposal of marriage. It is really more contemptible than the man who would kiss and tell. There is nothing that will place her on so high a pedestal with men as her treatment of them along the proposal lines. Skillful and sympathetic handling.

It is really much more advantageous for a girl who wants to be a social success to not let the fellow propose at all unless she intends to leap. He usually decides that he needs a "change of air" then, or he "will have to drop away for a while to recover," and while his heart is on the rebound somebody else gets him and you have one adorer less. No girl can afford to lose a single one.

Of course, a girl can always make a man propose if he is in love. If he is not she does not want him to.

It requires an awful lot of maneuvering and honey talk and smooth footing to keep a fellow on the string after he has proposed. Sometimes you can treat the matter with levity, or jolly him out of it, or you can bamboozle him into believing he didn't propose at all. You can ward it off also by talking so fast he has no chance to say it, or when it looks dangerous get your chum to hang around and hop in occasionally. But it is awfully enervating!

But some men will come to the exploding point when your mind is on your new gown. The best laid plans of men and mice sometimes fall asunder.

This question is not at all a one-sided game. A girl must keep awake. She cannot doze a minute. She is called upon to discriminate very finely.

For instance, a fellow may ask for "her hand" in the old-fashioned way. It is so old-fashioned you think he is an easy mark and prepare for a nap. But you want to feel very sure that he includes you with your hand. A person can ask at the table if you can reach the salt, too, but it is not saying he wants the salt cellar.

I have always been very shy and trembly when I felt that a proposal was in the air for fear he would frame the question so that I would have to ask if he included me to go along.

That is a deservedly popular form when the popping is done by "epistolary correspondence" ("Will you give me your hand?") in these days when the air is ripe with breach-of-promise suits. You have it in black and white, but have you a cinch in that?

Need I say more?

N. Y. STOCKS ARE LOWER AT OPENING

At the End of Half Hour Market Is Active and Strong.

NEW YORK, May 20, 10 a. m.—Following Tuesday's downward course the stock market opened lower this morning and in some of the prominent issues losses of a point or more were recorded. Great Northern and Northern Pacific were off a point each.

Southern Pacific and Union Pacific declined ¾ each, while other rail stocks were from ⅜ to ½ lower.

Pennsylvania, Chicago-Northwestern and B. R. T. were ¾ higher each.

Amalgamated Copper was the weakest stock among the industrials at the opening, losing 1¼ points.

Smelters, on the other hand, was ¼ higher in its initial sale.

Both the steel stocks opened at parity, and in the early trading were very slow.

At the end of the first half hour considerable strength was developed in all the prominent rail issues.

Northern Pacific gained 1¼, St. Paul and Reading ¾ each, Atchison ½, and Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Great Northern and St. Paul 1 each. In each of these stocks there was big trading.

Amalgamated was much the most active among the industrials and gained a point. The other industrials were little changed at the end of the first half hour.

American stocks in London were irregular, with small changes either way.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Missouri Pacific was the feature of a lively market in the forenoon hours. Opening at 59 this stock receded to 58 in the first fifteen minutes of trading and before noon had jumped up to 64, a gain of 6 points. It is evident from the recent actions of the stock that there is some important development brewing in Mo. Pacific.

With the important exception of Smelters all stock made higher levels in the forenoon.

Great Northern, Reading, Southern Pacific, Northern Pacific, Union Pacific and St. Paul registered gains of 1 point and over.

Advance in other stocks ranged from ¼ to ¾.

The activity of the market may be judged from the fact that the sales to noon were 628,300 shares.

The market closed in an irregular manner, most of the prominent stocks closing around parity.

TICKER TALK

Call money on the New York Exchange opened at 1¾ per cent and was quoted later at 1½ per cent.

NEW YORK, May 20.—The market was heavily manipulated during the forenoon, and there is no doubt but that the buying was well taken.

NEW YORK, May 20.—W. J. Wollman of J. S. Bache & Co. expresses the opinion that the commission houses are not really extended, and that the position therefore is sound enough whatever may be thought of the advisability of making a big speculative market at the present time. He does not see any indications yet that the advance is over.

Pennsylvania showed strength when the rest of the market was irregular or even inclined to sell off. The movement in the stock started late, but has perhaps attracted a following in conservative quarters, where more speculative stocks are distrusted.

Bond Notes.

Atchison convertible 5s, whose highest price before the panic was 102, are now 102½.

Swift & Co. 5 per cent bonds, which are traded in on the Boston and Chicago exchanges and have seen as low a price as 88, are now selling at over par. Safe bonds don't remain long at low prices.

Irrigation bonds are meeting with increased demand. By their glowing descriptions of the advantages of irrigated farms, the agricultural papers have created an unprecedented demand for such farm lands.

NATIVE CATTLE.—Receipts today were lighter than former days this week, and of the 3000 head received around 1800 were natives, and a fairly large proportion consisted of beef steers, and quite a number of good to choice lots were included, as well as the usual proportion of common and fair grades. A small bunch topped at $6.95, with two loads of choice steers selling at $6.80, and most of the good kinds from $6.30 up, with the plain kinds selling from $6 down. A few loads of good yearling steers sold from $5.75 to $5.90. The market was fairly active and prices in line with yesterday's range.

The supply of butcher cattle was moderate, and sold readily at an unchanged range of prices, with best heifers received selling at $5.50, some good cows at $5.25 and bulls at $5.10.

Top calves brought $6.25, and most of the good kinds sold at $6, the same as for several days past.

There was a light demand and the supply of stockers and feeders was also light, but the few here changed hands at steady values.

HOGS—While the receipts were not as large as yesterday, there was a right good supply on sale, and as the demand was also good the market opened active and averaged 5c higher, the top reaching $5.60, and the bulk of the good hogs sold at $5.47½@5.55. All desirable hogs were ready sale, but the common ones were no better.

UNITED R'YS STOCKS SELL STILL LOWER

Preferred Goes to 59 3-4, and the Common Changes Hands at 20.

Wall street, in miniature, was illustrated at the first session of the St. Louis Stock Exchange Wednesday. The session was even more lively and exciting than the corresponding one of the previous day.

The unwonted activity was caused by a desire of a number of brokers to sell stocks of the United Railways Co. Railways preferred was again the center of interest. This stock closed at 62½ Tuesday. Opening at 62 Wednesday, it was sold down gradually until it reached 59¾, when there was a slight recovery, the final sales being registered at 60, with 59¾ bid and 60¼ asked.

There was considerable selling of Railways common also. The lowest figures for the common Tuesday were 21½, Wednesday it changed hands at the uniform price of 20, a loss of almost 5 points in two days.

Although there was an apparent anxiety to get rid of Railways issues, there were brokers who seemed to welcome the opportunity to get them at reduced figures.

Outside of the traction stocks there was practically no sales negotiated.

Railways 4s held their position fairly well. Boatmen's Bank is ex-dividend. Books close Wednesday and open June 1.

There were no changes in prices of Railways preferred or common at the last session and transactions were limited to these stocks.

SPECULATION IN WHEAT MODERATE; FUTURES EASIER

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKETS IN BRIEF

CHICAGO, May 20.—Heavy selling of wheat, led by the principal owner of May corn and followed by a number of yesterday's buyers, proved a heavy weight for today's wheat market. The trade today laid the purchases to a coterie of local traders. Bright weather in most of the corn country made a lower market for corn. Oats were dull.

July wheat closed weak, 1c lower, at 89⅞c. July corn ⅛@⅝c lower at 66¼@66⅜c, and oats closed ¼c higher to ⅝c lower.

With most of the traders opinionless and waiting for the arrival of some radical feature on which to base their operations in one direction or the other—and in the meantime keeping out of the market to a great extent—local wheat was very dull Wednesday. Scattered presure was caused by the improved weather, and the close showed losses of ⅝c to ⅞c for the day.

Cables generally showed fair responses to our advances of yesterday. Liverpool coming 1¼d higher on the threatened drouth in Roumania, and the wet weather in Argentine which is causing small receipts there resulted in an upturn of 1⅝c at Berlin. Antwerp also closed ⅝c higher, but Budapest declined ⅜c to 3¼c. The opening was slightly higher, but the initial firmness was only momentary, as many of the traders who went long during yesterday's bulge began to sell out, and their offerings constituted quite a volume of pressure. It was the general opinion in the pit that notwithstanding the damage reports which were so numerous recently, good crops both of winter and sprin wheat will be raised. Strength to this idea was furnished by the splendid weather which now prevails throughout the winter belt, and crop advices this morning were of a uniformly optimistic character.

Towards the middle of the forenoon, after a decline of about ½c had been suffered, some nervousness set in, and a partial rally occurred. The buying was caused mainly by an official report that the wheat crop of the province of Unjaub, India, will be 82,560,000 bushels, compared with 120,800,000 bushels last year. The logic of buying on this seems rather vague as some time ago it was reported that this province would have no wheat at all to spare, but the figures were considered bullish and caused a scattered demand. Receipts at the local and most other winter markets were somewhat smaller, with stocks still decreasing and though very little of a cash demand existed shipments from most points were of good volume. The predicted increase in receipts of the Northwest did not materialize, arrivals at the three big markets of that region being only 175 cars, against 586 last year. The buying, which at one time reached fair proportions, was also encouraged by the official forecast of cold weather, rain and sleet in different parts of the Northwest.

The mills are buying very little wheat. The seaboard reported that many of the Eastern mills are grinding at a loss and the larger ones at Minneapolis are also telling of difficulty in selling flour, though the small country mills of the Northwest are buying good quantities of the grain. The export demand was again almost stagnant, very few bids being within workable limits. Prices again sagged and towards noon ruled very dull.

July wheat opened 1-16c higher at 86⅝c, declined to 86½@86⅝c, recovered to 86⅞c, was offered down to 86⅛c, and rallied to 86¼c. September wheat opened 1-16c higher at 85@85⅛c, declined to 84⅝c and was bid up to 84⅝@84¾c.

Cash sales in Chicago Tuesday were 15,000 bu wheat, 300,000 bu corn and 300,000 bu oats. Export sales at the seaboard were 32,000 bu wheat and 16,000 bu corn.

GIRLS FLIRT AFTER EATING STRING BEANS

French Scientists Think Vegetables Influence Human Nature.

POTATOES AID BRAINS

Carrots Make Husbands Gentle, Cabbage Has Coarsening Effect.

Is your husband cross? Has he got a disposition like a sour apple or a green persimmon?

Here's the cure!

Feed him on carrots. Don't be afraid they will make him "red headed." They will have exactly the opposite effect, so far as his temper is concerned. After you have fed him on carrots for a few days he will eat out of your hand.

This is one of a few things learned about the psychic effects of vegetables, by French scientists whose reports have just been placed in the hands of members of the St. Louis Medical Society.

There's cabbage, for instance. These eminent investigators find that you are taking a big risk if you feed it to your husband. As surely as fate it will make him vulgar and coarse, and if he eats it to excess, he may develop a double chin and use profanity in company.

The report recites the instance of a lady who cooked cabbage for her husband three times a week for two years. At the end of that time his nature had been changed so that he couldn't make a fire in the furnace without saying:

"Dash bling the dadblamed thing."

Cauliflower is almost as bad, though it works more slowly and insidiously, in changing a good temper into a bad one.

"Editors, judges and other superior persons (personnes superieures) should eat many potatoes," says the report.

Now, of course, your husband is a superior person and you would no doubt like to know why he should eat potatoes. Simply because they will develop his reasoning faculties and increase his brain power.

Maybe he thinks he knows it all now. Just put him through a course of "spuds" and show him that he's wrong. But don't overdo it, for if you do, your husband will become lazy.

The report tells of a woman in the Rue d'Arsenal, who gave her husband so many potatoes to eat that he gave up his lucrative position as horse butcher and sat all day in the Place Vendome, with his finger on his forehead, saying to passers-by: "Voila! See my bulging brain."

Which shows that potatoes, like other articles of food, may be overdone.

But the strongest warning conveyed in the report of the French scientists is that which tells mothers not to permit their daughters to eat string beans, in immoderate quantities.

They cause girls to flirt. To be on the safe side, it is best to feed your daughters on the Chinese string bean, which has no string, differing in that respect from the Chinese fiddle, which has one.

Several instances are cited, in which girls eloped after partaking too freely of string beans.

At the present market price in St. St. Louis, brains are 50 cents a peck—that is, potatoes are—and as the report shows, they are the stuff that brains are made of.

But if you can't afford to get a new peck for your husband, you can at least sweeten his disposition with carrots. They are a thousand smiles in a bunch.

STUDENTS TO PRESENT COMEDY

"Higbee of Harvard," a three act comedy, will be presented by the Thyrsus Club, the dramatic organization at Washington University, next Saturday evening at Self-Culture Hall, 1832 Carr street. The play is by Charles Townsend.

The cast will include Misses Ruth Curl, Julia Griswald, Helen Gorse, Josephine Angert; Messrs. Paul Hawkins, Frank Eliot, George Logan, John Mare and Edward Jackson. Hugh Ferris, a student at Washington University, with considerable artistic talent, has prepared a clever poster with which the play will be advertised.
